A Matter of Honor

On December 7, 1955, Attorney-General Robert Bonner was told that his colleague, Mr. Robert Sommers, had accepted certain moneys, possibly as bribes. Next day Mr. Bonner sent a contemptuous telegram to the accuser, Mr. David Sturdy, in which he said that these charges, "coinciding with a by-election," filled him with "profound skepticism towards the entire matter" and "seem far-fetched."

The whole matter, Mr. Bonner evidently hoped, was at an end. In fact, it was only beginning. Though Sommers and H. Wilson Gray were convicted this week of conspiracy and bribery and await sentence, the matter is not, or should not, be finished even yet.

The courts have dealt with Sommers and Wilson Gray. They have disagreed regarding Charles Schultz, John M. Gray and B.C. Forest Products, and these presumably will be tried again. The courts having spoken, there is no need to comment on any of these persons.

But what about Mr. Bonner? Who is to deal with him?

Mr. Bonner is accused of no crime. His personal honesty is not questioned. Nevertheless, while he has not been on trial in the courts of law he has been on trial in the court of public opinion. And the verdict on Sommers is a verdict, so far as the public is concerned, on Mr. Bonner's conduct as attorney-general.

The verdict means, and can only mean, that Mr. Bonner has been derelict in his duty as the first law officer of the Crown and is unfit for his office.

Readers of this newspaper will understand that, until today, it has not been free to comment on a case before the courts. Only now, after nearly three years of delay, is it proper to analyze Mr. Bonner's extraordinary conduct and that of his leader, Mr. Bennett.

The inner facts did not emerge, indeed, until near the end of the Sommers trial. Then, for the first time, the public learned of the conversation between Mr. Bonner and Sommers on December 7, 1955, immediately after Mr. Sturdy had departed with his "far-fetched" evidence.

Under oath, Sommers testified that he had told Mr. Bonner of the money which he had received from Wilson Gray and which he regarded as innocent loans.

Mr. Bonner, strangely enough, did not suspect that any crime might have been committed. He did not feel that this ugly business required any criminal prosecution or even any further inquiry. He brushed it off with a telegram.

But he knew, according to Sommers' statement under oath, that Sommers had been taking money, legally, or illegally, from Gray. Whether he suspected Gray's purpose or not, Mr. Bonner must have known, if he was fit for his office, if he knew anything about our constitution, that no cabinet minister should be taking money for any purpose whatever from such sources. He knew that, legally or illegally, Sommers had committed an offence unpardonable in any Cabinet minister.

Yet at that time, and for some time afterwards, Mr. Bonner did nothing to get to the bottom of this affair, to clear the name of his colleague or to punish him. On the contrary, according to Sommers' evidence, Mr. Bonner did everything possible to protect his colleague, and discourage any further discussion.

Sommers says he had given notes to Gray for the so-called "loans" and, on December 7, 1955, had told Mr. Bonner of these notes. According to Sommers, Mr. Bonner "advised me to get those notes in my possession immediately, as he said the situation might be misunderstood or misconstrued."

Asked whether Mr. Bonner and the Cabinet knew that he was favorably disposed to a certain forest management licence application, Sommers said he could not answer. He could not reveal Cabinet secrets.

He said, however, that he had arranged for a bank loan to repay Gray "on the formal instructions drafted by the attorney-general." Sommers produced in court a document which, he swore, contained the formal instructions to the bank and to Gray, as drafted by the attorney-general.

Mr. Bonner's informal instructions to Sommers were, in effect, to keep quiet about the "loans" from Gray. This pact of secrecy was maintained for many months.

When Sommers resigned from the Cabinet but remained in the Legislature he made a speech accusing various persons of a conspiracy to wreck him and British Columbia's timber conservation policy. But he said nothing about the "loans". Why, the prosecution asked, had he not mentioned them? Sommers said he was advised not to do so by the attorney-general.

Only three persons, Sommers says, knew that he had raised $8,000 at the bank to repay the "loans" (the bank loan being later repaid by an anonymous benefactor). Those three were Mr. Bennett, Mr. Bonner and Mr. Einar Gunderson.

On Sommers' evidence, therefore, Mr. Bonner knew, or should have known, from the beginning, that something very wrong was afoot, whether it was a crime or only an act of gross ministerial misconduct.

Even assuming that Sommers' court evidence is inaccurate, that Mr. Bonner did not know in the beginning about the loans from Gray, it is still true that the attorney-general should have realized, after his meeting with Messrs. Sturdy and Eversfield nearly three years ago, that his clear duty was to get all the facts and protect the Government's integrity.

Still he did nothing while Sommers launched a farcical libel suit which effectively prevented any public comment until the autumn of 1957.

In the meantime Mr. Bennett had not been idle. Before the libel suit could be tried, before the public could learn whether a great department of state had been corrupted, Mr. Bennett called the snap election of September 19, 1956, and won it easily.

Meanwhile also, Mr. Bonner had experienced second thoughts very late. He instructed the Mounted Police to investigate the matter which he had formerly considered a "far-fetched" political stunt.

A furious debate in the Legislature could not compel him to reveal the results of that investigation nor did he suggest that he had further action in mind. His excuse for inaction was that the matter already was before the courts in the form of the libel suit, though as a lawyer he must have known the invariable rule governing such a situation—namely, that criminal proceedings always take precedence over a civil case. His duty was to enforce the law but for nearly two years he took no action against Sommers.

When at last Sommers announced by radio from a point of seclusion that he had taken innocent "loans" from Gray; when the libel suit collapsed because Sommers did not appear, then for the first time Mr. Bonner took action. The government set up a royal commission to study the whole matter. The commission had hardly begun, however, before he changed his mind again and prosecuted Sommers together with other persons.

There is the record of the attorney-general—the record, one might almost say, of the case of Bonner versus the People.

The courts have spoken on the guilt or innocence of the accused. It is for the people to speak on Mr. Bonner's worthiness to hold his office. Concerning that question there surely can be only one answer: Mr. Bonner is unworthy, and should be dismissed.

Here a grave responsibility devolves upon Mr. Bennett, who alone can appoint or dismiss his colleagues. But Mr. Bennett's own position in the Sommers case is really no better than Mr. Bonner's.

According to Sommers, Mr. Bennett (along with the ever-present Mr. Gunderson) knew from the beginning that Sommers had taken money where he had no moral right to take it, whether his act was legal or illegal. Mr. Bennett knew, according to Sommers, but he did nothing—except to call an election before the facts could emerge.

The only excuse that Mr. Bennett can make is that, as a layman, he relied, in a legal matter, on his legal expert, Mr. Bonner. It is a lame excuse but no doubt it will be made to serve. If so, how can Mr. Bennett retain such an inept adviser?

The public will await Mr. Bennett's answer to that question and the Legislature should insist on having it.

While it is unnecessary now to go over the record of the longest trial in British Columbia's history, one gratifying fact—the fact which underpins our whole system of human freedom—should be noted. The courts have been delayed by many distractions but steadily, day by day, month by month, they have groped toward the truth and reached a verdict.

Under such a judge as Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson (whose conduct in an infinitely complex and exhausting case was a model of decorum, whose summation will go down as a legal classic) the law is safe.

And that fact, much more than the pitiable persons immediately involved, is the important, lasting fact of the Sommers case.

Fire broke out in the restaurant shortly after the shooting.

Fire Chief Graham LeDrew was hit in the arm by a bullet while leading his men in the battle against the blaze.

The fire at one time threatened nearby buildings.

Police surrounded the building and exchanged shots with the men. An attempt to drive them out with tear gas failed.

After the fire was brought under control police broke into the restaurant.

No explanation was given for the men's behavior. An informed source said James Ling closed up the restaurant as usual Saturday night. When he didn't reopen for business and refused to admit employees police were asked to investigate.

The attorney-general says the Social Credit party will contest the by-election and we have every optimism for a successful outcome.

Provincial Liberal Leader Arthur Laing, breaking his silence on the case, said Thursday night in Chilliwack that Mr. Bonner "would have been disbarred if he had been a practising lawyer for the manner in which he neglected his duty" in the Sommers case.

He told a party meeting that "there was evidence at the Sommers trial in the attorney-general's handwriting showing Sommers how he could evade the consequences of the law by showing him how to pay off notes on what Sommers contended were loans from Wilson Gray.

That would mean the election date could be shortly after Dec. 8.

The government welcomes the news" of the resignation said Mr. Bonner, "because it clears the way for the representation of the riding of Rossland-Trial at the next session of the House."

The

Soviet Breaks A-Test Pact

Ike Says U.S., Britain to Continue Suspension But Reserve Rights

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower announced today that Russia has staged two atomic weapons tests since East-West test ban negotiations started Oct. 31.

He said this country and Great Britain will continue their test suspension for the time being but warned that the Soviet action "relieves the United States of any obligation" to do so.

The president said that if the Russians do not stop their weapons experiments, the United States "will be obliged to reconsider" the test suspension which Britain and the U.S. put in effect when the Geneva talks began.

The Atomic Energy Commission said the Russians staged test explosions of relatively small yield weapons Nov. 1 and Nov. 3 at its southern Russian test site. Previously the AEC had reported 14 Soviet explosions at the test site north of the Arctic Circle.

The president recalled that on Aug. 22 he proposed that the East and West suspend tests for a year from the day negotiations for a permanent ban got under way. Britain agreed.

But the Russians, while agreeing to start negotiations, claimed the right to continue testing until they had exploded as many weapons as the United States and United Kingdom had fired since the last Soviet test series which ended March 22.

The Russians accordingly resumed testing Sept. 30, after a suspension of six months, and have not yet stopped.

Fishpacker 'Up-Ends'; 7 Rescued

By Canadian Press

Seven seamen were rescued Thursday night before the 89-foot fish packer Squamish Queen, sank stern first off the West Coast of Vancouver Island.

The vessel, one of the most powerful packers on the coast, was Vancouver bound with a full load of herring from Barclay Sound. When she "up-ended."

A spokesman for the owners, Anglo-B.C. Packers Ltd., said he had not yet been able to determine what happened.

The men were taken aboard another packer, the Cape James, as water surged over the decks. The rescue was completed in 15-foot swells.

A company spokesman said the vessel was valued at about $100,000, and the 200 tons of herring aboard at $5,000.

U.K. Tories Hold Seats; Margins Cut

LONDON (Reuters) — The Conservative government held two "safe" seats in parliamentary by-elections Thursday but suffered a marked percentage loss of votes in one of them.

In the Lancashire constituency of Morecambe and Lonsdale, the government candidate won the seat by a wide majority but polled a smaller share of the votes than in the last election.

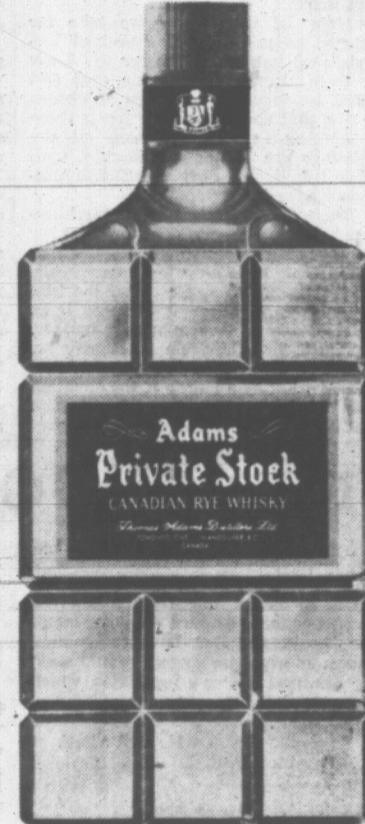

In the second seat reporting today the Conservative candidate also was an easy winner. In this seat, as Chichester, Sussex, the vote divided between Conservative and Labor in almost the same proportions as in the last election.

Basil de Farrant won at Morecambe and Walter Lovells at Chichester.

Canada Relents on Wool Tariffs

LONDON (Reuters) — Canada has told Britain it intends to restore a margin of preference to British wool textiles, Sir David Eccles, president of the British Board of Trade, said Thursday.

Conservative MP Geoffrey Hirst had told the House of Commons that the wool textile industry was gravely concerned at the Canadian and United States import tariff quotas.

Eccles replied he was in close touch with both countries and was pressing for the removal of disabilities against British goods.

"The Canadian finance minister has just told me it is the firm intention of his government to restore the margin of preference formerly enjoyed by the United Kingdom."

The Canadian tariff of imports of British woollen cloth was increased in the Canadian budget last June.

At Ottawa, it was emphasized that Canada intends to restore Britain's tariff margin on wool cloth by boosting duties on non-Commonwealth supplies, principally Italy.

Without consulting Britain, the Canadian government last June boosted duties on British wool cloth to a maximum of 55 cents and 60 cents a pound from the former long-standing ceiling of 50 cents.

Everybody Loses

IN A RECENT RADIO BROADCAST Mr. George Gregory, MLA, cited some remarkable facts. Among them:

Last spring the electricians of the B.C. Electric struck for a pay increase of 60 cents an hour. They went back to work with the increase of 11 cents offered by their employers in the beginning. Each electrician had lost $445 in pay during a strike which gained him nothing.

Members of the Plumbers Union were on strike from April 30 to September 9 and won an increase of 20 cents an hour. But each striker lost $2,000 through idleness and will have to work five years, at the new rate, until he begins to break even.

Local 213 of the Teamsters Union was on strike from March 4 until April 30 and won a package deal worth 40 cents an hour. But, says Mr. Gregory, the result of the strike, from the workers' point of view, can be judged by the statement of the Teamsters' secretary, Mr. Joseph Whitefield: "I would say that the strike was not a success."

If he had gone back a little further Mr. Gregory might have noted that the huge British Columbia pulp industry was struck last winter. The cost to the industry was reckoned at $50 millions and to the workers, in wages, at more than $6 millions. Yet the workers accepted in the end the terms offered by management in the beginning. Both sides had lost heavily and so, of course, had the whole provincial economy.

On the other hand, says Mr. Gregory, the policemen and firemen of Victoria, who voluntarily gave up the right to strike in exchange for binding conciliation, gained this year as much as any union that went on strike and they have not lost an hour's employment.

Mr. Gregory uses these examples to prove not that strikes should be outlawed but only that they are often a costly, disruptive method of settling wage disputes.

Need for the Roving Eye

WHILE THE RIPPLES OF THE propaganda loan Russia tossed into the Aswan dam spread outward—with important implications to the whole Middle East and the Persian Gulf—astute observers are advising the West not to focus its eyes solely on the Soviet deal in Egypt.

There are other points to watch. Mr. Khrushchev's declaration of economic war on the United States is not concentrated only on the Nile and adjacent watersheds.

Mr. Neal Stanford, writing for The Christian Science Monitor, draws sharp attention to economic infiltration closer to home. He suggests a long, penetrating look at South America.

In Argentina, Russia has extended credit for oil development. Equipment to be used will be Soviet-made, and very probably operated under the supervision of Russian technicians. The Kremlin seems to have found in Buenos Aires an opening through which to invade a territory where American capital has been dominant.

Under the Edwardian Vest . . .

SOME MONTHS AGO AN ENGLISH social worker specializing in youth problems visited Victoria and threw a different light on the personality of his country's Teddy Boys.

The genuine article, he explained, was not a hoodlum. He was merely a youth with a penchant for somewhat exaggerated and fastidious Edwardian dress and hair-styling.

Unfortunately, the social worker added, the ranks of such groups had been invaded by an undesirable element which distorted the public's image of a Teddy Boy. Dress and hair-styling à la Teddy Boy took on connotations attributed to the

Tapering Off Work

THE NATIONAL FEDERATION of Federal Employees in the United States has heard some good advice from Mr. James C. O'Brien, of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

In effect, Mr. O'Brien has said, "Let's take this retirement problem gradually. Let's not have it all in one fell swoop."

The proposal, as the spokesman explains, would bring into operation a tapering-off process for workers moving into their 60s. It would progressively shorten the work day and week, until the person about

Language

The Times (London)

"As an independent nation, our honor requires us to have a system of our own, in language as well as government. Great Britain . . . whose language we speak, should no longer be our standard; for the taste of her writers is already corrupted, and her language on the decline."

Noah Webster, the American lexicographer, who was born just 200 years ago probably did more than any other American, Franklin included, to establish this emancipation of American from English as an independent but "friendly" language which he demanded in his "Dissertation on the English language."

In England to this day there are still people who find this hard to accept; quavering pedants in Dorset and Dymchurch still write crotchety letters to the editor about the assassination of our language by the dastardly colonials.

But Webster certainly won his case, or most of it, with the American people. His first great work, the "Grammatical Institute—a spelling book, grammar and reader in three parts—of the English Language," which came out nearly thirty years after Dr. Johnson's dictionary, was selling at the rate of a million copies a year by 1861 and by 1890 60,000,000 copies of the spelling book had been bought.

He was responsible for most of the major spelling reforms in the American language—the English are belatedly catching up with some of them now—though some of the more radical phonetic renderings he suggested have yet to be accepted.

TIME TO GIVE NATURE A HAND

Song of Improvement: Bless the Mall, Bless the Mall

VICTORIANS no doubt were a little miffed to read in the latest issue of Maclean's that 35 selected artists, photographers, town planners, architects and others have decided that the most attractive cities in Canada are Vancouver, Quebec, Montreal and Ottawa, in that order. What, no mention of Victoria? No, no mention of Victoria. But . . . but . . .

It comes as a bit of a shock, doesn't it? Naturally, as Victorians, we are accustomed to looking modest and complacent when there is any discussion of civic beauty. We sit back and accept as our due the gush of praise and admiration that usually ensues. Perhaps those artists, photographers, etc., etc., were not of the first rank, perhaps they didn't know what they were talking about and had never made the pilgrimage to our Island.

But on the other hand, perhaps they had. When you get right down to it and look at our city, what has it got in the way of beauty?

It has a beautiful setting, to be sure,

But that's the way Sir James Douglas found it when he arrived. What have we done in the intervening years to improve it, or even hold the line?

There are some bright spots, admittedly. The general atmosphere of well-kept gardens is a happy one, even though it is not prevalent in all parts of the city. The inner harbor prospect is good, if you ignore the wharfage on one side of the harbor, the commercial property on the other and the parking lot beyond the Causeway.

Then, except for a vista here and there, a view of Craigdarroch against the sky, what have we besides the beauties which nature has provided? Not much.

Many of the streets we take for granted as part of "our beautiful Victoria" add nothing to the beauty. Look at them through a visitor's eyes and you'll be surprised—perhaps shocked—to find that above the store fronts there is nothing at all. So many of the buildings are one or two storeys, with false fronts or empty storefront windows above the street level.

There is no attempt at "architecture," there are no open squares or plazas, nothing to distinguish us, really, from some little prairie town.

That is not to suggest that the true Victorian cannot love it the way it is, as a child may love a homely mother.

But such love, laudable as it may be, should not be allowed to deprive mother of a new hat or a hairdo if the situation calls for it. And that is the situation that Victorians are faced with today.

The sweeping plans for shopping malls, pedestrian areas with garden plots, properly situated public buildings, and similar improvements offer a chance to do something with the city, and try to recoup in some small degree the earlier failures to lay out a community that could have been a world-famous attraction.

We've been told by experts that our future—and a very fine one it could be, too—lies in development as a cultural centre, an educational city, a seat of government and an all-year tourist resort.

But while we think of this future as something that will happen to us, we do nothing, or very little, to set the stage for the scenes to come. We want the city to be attractive and enjoyable, so that a visit here would be a memorable thing.

But we're still depending on the view of Mount Baker (on a clear day you can see the Coast Range), on the Strait and the Olympics, on that wonderful snap you can take if you stand right here and look across the golf course towards the lighthouse over there. We aren't doing anything about the city itself.

In fact, most of our building sprees, both within and outside of the city limits, have apparently only one intent —to crowd more and more houses on smaller and smaller lots, cut down all the trees, spoil the views and generally construct an expensive slum for the future.

Mr. Deutsch, in his recent study of the situation here, had a very interesting paragraph on this theme. He said:

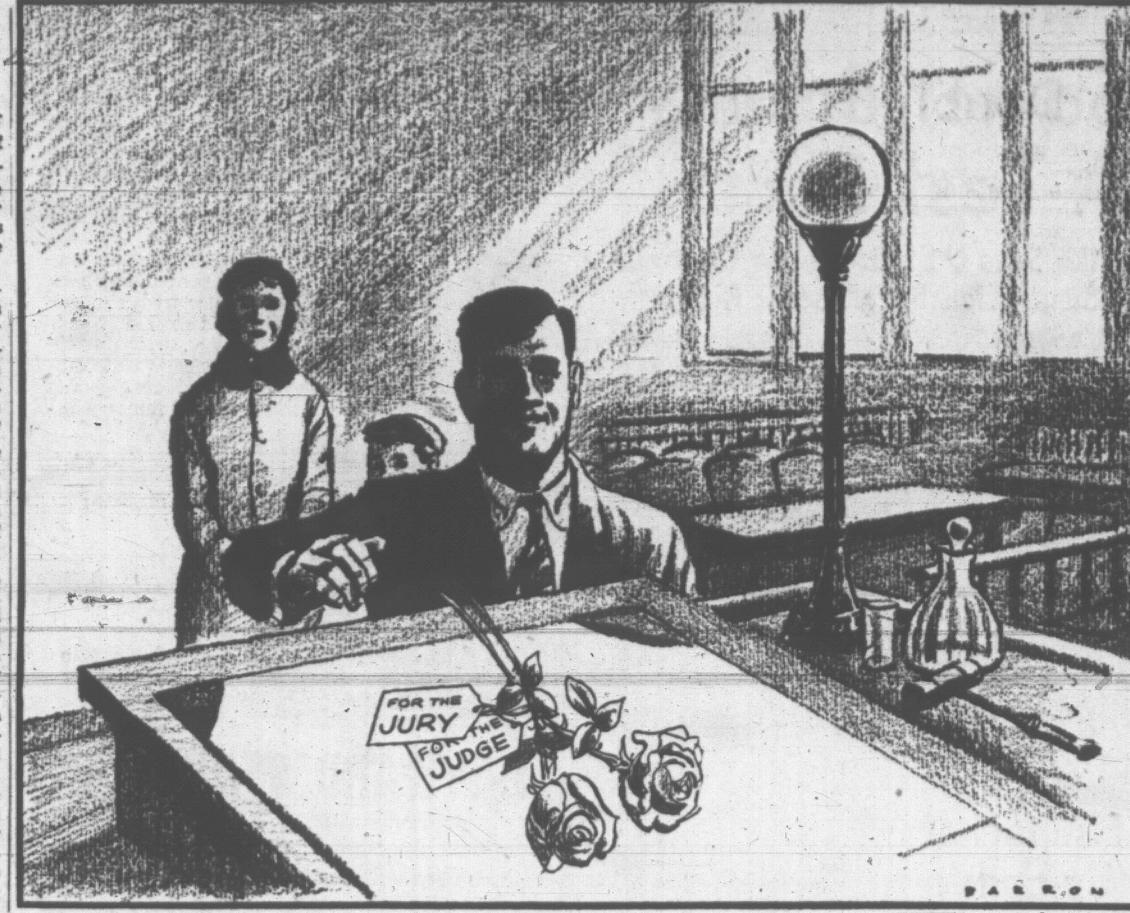

"The attractions and advantages of the Greater Victoria area are quite distinctive; they do not arise as much out of industrial possibilities as in most other centres, but out-of-the-ordinary advantages of the area as an administrative centre for both government and business, as a place for refined persons to make their homes, and as a centre for tourism in the widest sense."

These distinctive advantages are based on climate, pleasant physical surroundings, natural amenities and convenience of living. These are assets which must be fostered and preserved.

"Such assets can quickly be destroyed through unwise use of land, haphazard development, pollution, traffic congestion, general untidiness, and failure to develop and provide adequate recreational, cultural, and other community facilities."

Well, there we have it. The list of things we're supposed to avoid reads very much like the list of things we've been doing. Now that there is a move afoot to start correcting this situation, will we fumble it?

In the Opinion of Our Correspondents

'Lower Wages'

"We Need Lower Wages," is the headline a union owned newspaper in Stockholm, Sweden, ran the other day. Union leaders don't say things like that in North America. They have never said it so publicly before in Scandinavia, either.

What is happening in Sweden, Denmark, Norway, Finland? Economic facts are forcing governments into new lines of thinking. They are losing out in export markets due to high wages, and even in home markets. Swedish unions see the handwriting on the wall. They prefer to see jobs, rather than higher wages but no jobs.

Norway also finds exports shrinking. Unemployment alarms Norwegians and the unions. In all four countries the unions' power fades with growing unemployment. The shorter work-week put through by unions this year spreads the work but boosts costs still more.

These welfare states now admit that all is not well with their economies. Full employment is a receding prospect. Heavy unemployment is feared this winter.

Socialistic governments are having to water down the welfare states. Steps to stimulate private investment are being taken in Finland, Sweden and Denmark. Elaborate pension plans are being shelved in Sweden. Food subsidies are being reduced in Norway and Finland. A sales tax is now proposed in Denmark. Higher minimum rents are in sight, too.

These moves show a trend in a part of the world where the welfare state has reached its fullest flowering.

Even with a 10 per cent sales tax we in Canada have reached about the same position, and we have a high provincial sales tax too.

Unions Have Overdone It

Recent articles in the paper indicate that labor generally in B.C. is girding its loins for a struggle against what it calls "ganging up" by employers in B.C. to break the unions.

I am sure that nothing is further from the truth. The fact is that economics is at last overtaking the unions. Management has at last been forced to resist exorbitant labor demands because management is finding stiff consumer resistance to new high prices. The consumer can no longer pay the price demanded by labor. Witness the fact that the consumer can no longer engage building mechanics for necessary repairs to his house.

It should be obvious to even the blindest unions what is really happening. Such blindness can only hasten the legislation that must be enacted to control and curb labor unions as big business was curbed in the early part of this century.

All fair-minded people are aware of the great contribution labor unions have made towards equity and stability in our modern society, but present-day conditions indicate that the unions have overdone it. We in B.C. are pricing ourselves out of the world market so necessary for continued employment of our people, and B.C. is fast becoming known as a plague spot to capital seeking locations for new industries, which are, of course, the only source of new employment.

Methods Questioned

The Community Chest deserves the support of all of us, and is a worthy charity.

True charity is anonymous, and "happiness" can not be bought. This leads me most reluctantly to question the methods of Mr. Harbord and his friends.

If we are to have each year campaigns of vilification and abuse; attacks on groups of people who, individually, are neither better nor worse than any others; threats to expose donation lists, and thereby kill all charitable instincts; surely it would be simpler to do away with the "Community Chest". altogether and raise the funds by taxation. Certainly it would be very much more pleasant.

Charity can be expressed in many ways. I know a great many people who have been so offended by this campaign that they are already tempted to turn away from a cause which has been noble, but is now being debased.

The nature of this year's campaign compels me to ask that I remain,

ANONYMOUS.

Halloween 'Fun'

As we were driving through the country last Saturday, Nov. 1, I saw a sight that I cannot forget.

It was an old man so bent and ill-looking that he should most certainly have been in hospital. He was dragging a mail box and its post across the road, and every step had been beyond his strength. He had almost reached his house as we drew level in our car, and the sight of him will haunt me every Halloween.

When is this pandering to youth going to stop? When are we going to realize the seed of evil that can be sown in some minds by our own laxity in this matter?

Can you explain to me why, on this one isolated night of the year, law-abiding parents relinquish their hold and allow their children to become hooligans and and—yes—blackmailers? "Either you give ds—or—?"

If it is alright for children to destroy property, encroach upon personal privacy, and at best make nuisances of themselves on this night, how can we in all fairness tell them it is wrong every other time of the year?

The gang Mr. Rush spoke about in the council chamber had its inception when, as little so-called hobgoblins and witches they went around from neighbor to neighbor to show off perhaps their fancy costumes. This in itself appeared harmless, I am sure, but look what it has grown into and shudder at what it might still become.

A great man once said: "When God puts a child into the cradle he is saying 'You may keep me.'

What a farce that has become today in too many homes when parents don't stop to think ahead to what the effect of a "prank" might be on the mind of an immature child, such a prank condemned, mind you, by all and sundry because it is Halloween.

As we drove along we saw evidence of vandalism mile after mile. Beautiful ornamental painted fences ruthlessly destroyed and pulled up; countless mail boxes uprooted and smashed, and still more appalling, road signs pulled and thrown under bushes.

A life could be sacrificed to this god of fun and frolic.

HAUNTED.

And the Living

On Remembrance Day parents, brothers, sisters and children of those who gave their lives in three wars feel with increased intensity the heartache of their loss.

As all is noise hushed we stand in tribute and sympathy for the 11 o'clock two minutes silence during the Cenotaph and other ceremonies; flags at half mast for the dead. (All able-bodied veterans are present to honor their own.)

They are the ones who suffer, not their dead. Those who pay daily sacrifice are the living; young men and some girls, struck down in war combat services, so badly injured and mutilated that they have had to be cared for in Veterans' Hospitals the rest of their lives (and that means for some of them many years) and so denied home and normal life.

They, too, should have public recognition and not as veterans only, but also should be made to feel they are our fellow citizens—listened to—not just talked to.

Think of these living sacrifices. I would ask all, "Is it nothing to you ye that pass by?"

Double Life of A. Beetle

DR. HEC RICHMOND smiles with easy tolerance on anyone who calls him "Mr. Ambrosia Beetle Himself."

It's a smile that shows recognition for an effort at humor, but also indicates that the humor is not too high-in quality.

Still, if anyone is on terms of close familiarity with the ambrosia beetle it should be Hec Richmond. As entomologist he has made an intensive study of the insect for MacMillan & Bloedel and has come up with findings which he believes will join the bug out of years of growth, and out of fresh-cut timber in the woods.

The ambrosia beetle is small but demanding. Timber operators have been paying millions in recent years to find him bed and breakfast—and paying it very unwillingly.

The insect bores its way into logs newly-felled and left in the woods. It cuts through one year's growth ring on a downed tree, channels along, and then moves into another ring. Where it has travelled and fed, a small tunnel is left. The tunnels reduce the value of the logs, both through the break in fibre and in the dark stain that accompanies it.

The early remedy adopted by loggers called for the logs' quick removal from the ground in the forest to booming areas in the water. But Dr. Richmond's research has shown that the beetle will attack logs even in the salt chuck.

To discourage this destructive insect, a spray technique has been devised.

When the method is perfected, the loss in log value will be checked and the industry will save millions.

Stott

I asked Hec if he had the bug on the way to oblivion.

"Heavens ho," came back the answer. "We can't do without the ambrosia beetle entirely. You see," he explained, "if it weren't for the ambrosia beetle, carpenter ants, termites and the like, the stuff that falls in the forest would pile up so much the forest wouldn't have a chance. They're the scavengers. All we want to do is keep them out of felled timber and commercial logs."

It may be a little difficult for the ambrosia beetle to understand the distinction between natural fall-down and cut timber. The idea of segregation hasn't been drilled into him, but he'll learn. And he'll learn the hard way as sprays make transition from his old haunts to felled and bucked trees as uncomfortable for him as entry into Little Rock's Central High has been for a Negro child.

The double role of the ambrosia beetle is the stuff philosophy is made of. As far as the insect is concerned, it's doing what comes naturally when it bores through a piece of wood rubbish on the forest floor or when it moves into cut timber. It's only the attitude the outsider takes to its efforts that makes the difference. In one environment, it is functioning according to plan. In the other it is violating the rights of private property, that is, the felled log owned by a timber concern or logger.

The deed is the same in each instance. It's only that the time and the place alter the circumstances.

You can go on from there to a discussion of man's interference in the balance of nature and work up quite a case for the insect. But under present conventions, you couldn't win.

The rules of segregation say that ambrosia beetles shall stay out of cut logs, on penalty of death. But have a kind thought for the rejected. If he didn't help to clean up the forest debris, there might be no forests at all, no bucked timber to keep him out of.

* * *

Having heard the story, I assumed that the forest world would be much better off if the pest were completely destroyed. And that only shows how much you have to know about forestry before you know anything at all.

UN CORRESPONDENCE

By STANLEY BURKE

End of the Misery Camps

NEW YORK—The end is in sight for the misery camps of Europe. The UN high commissioner for refugees expects that by 1961 the last of these unhappy places, the last refugee camp, will close its gates; the last unhappy inmate will move into the outside community. In a tough world, this story of European refugees is a rare, heart-warming success story.

I spoke to Dr. Auguste Lindt of Switzerland, the high commissioner for refugees, who said that one of his most difficult tasks has been to persuade people that the problem is not hopeless.

The jovial, thick-set former war correspondent pointed out that in 1955, when the UN refugee program started, there were 300,000 unsettled refugees in Europe. In the intervening three years, another 300,000 have moved into Western Europe, the majority from Hungary. Of this 600,000, only 160,000 remain unsettled and only 40,000 are in camps. Hungarian refugees are now down to 16,000 and they are expected to be settled "within a few months."

* * *

"If we get the money and the co-operation, we expect the camps to be closed by 1961," he said.

"We have raised a new generation which has known no other life," he said. And he pointed out that some of these children have now started families, "and thus the problem is carried over into a third generation."

The majority of the refugees still in the camps will be settled in Europe and this raises the question of the contribution which Canada has made to the solution of the problem. Dr. Lindt is careful not to criticize any country, but a few minute's conversation makes it evident that Canada and the other host countries have not sacrificed themselves. They have, in fact, accepted the cream of the immigrants while leaving the problem cases for the poorer countries of Europe to care for.

Dr. Lindt questioned whether a different standard should be applied by the countries of "first asylum" and the countries in which refugees finally settle.

"What would have happened," he asked, "if Austria had said that she would only accept Hungarian refugees with certain qualifications?"

Many human tragedies have been caused by the restrictive policies of countries such as Canada, the United States and Australia. Families have been broken up, for example, because one parent failed to meet health requirements. Many refugees have been refused because of tuberculosis in particular and UN authorities question whether such rigid restrictions are necessary.

"Many of the restrictions concerning tuberculosis were drawn up in the 19th century," said an official. "We feel that they are no longer necessary today when tuberculosis is no longer a threat."

Many countries, including Canada are now relaxing their restrictions somewhat however. Sweden has taken the unusual step of recruiting refugees with tuberculosis.

"Like many countries today, Sweden has considerable room in her sanatoria," said the official. "More important is the fact that these people make wonderful immigrants. They are so grateful for the treatment and opportunity given them that they invariably do everything possible to repay the host country."

The result of these relaxations is that the "hard core" problem cases are being absorbed. But Dr. Lindt points out that this won't end the problem. Refugees are still moving out of Eastern Europe at the rate of about 20,000 a year.

There also remain other refugee problems for which no solution is in sight, in the Middle East, North Africa and Asia.

New Atom Secret At Chalk River

CHALK RIVER, Ont. (CP)—By Christmas physicists at Canada's atomic energy project here will be using beams with fantastic energies in new studies on the composition of matter.

IMPORTANT TOOL

Dr. H. E. Gove, 36-year-old head of the branch, said in an interview the machine will be an important research tool in studies of the structure of atoms. It could lead to new applications of atomic power for peaceful uses.

The beams will be produced in a $1,000,000 machine known as a Tandem accelerator, or "atom smasher," first of its type to go into operation in the Western World. Installation is nearing completion.

TREMENDOUS ENERGY

The equipment will enable scientists to bombard the nuclei or core of atoms with beams of particles having an energy of 10,000,000 volts. With additional equipment it will be possible later to increase the energy of the particles to 18,000,000 volts.

The beam of high-speed particles produced in the 26-ton steel tank will be deflected by two powerful electromagnets—one weighing six tons and the other two tons—into an experimental room 25 feet from the accelerator. The materials being tested will be in the experimental room.

RISING COSTS

Patients cost an average $15.68 per day in Ontario general hospitals in 1957, compared with $7.78 just 10 years ago.

The accelerator, housed in an L-shaped building 150 feet long and 60 feet wide, will be operated by the nuclear physics forces.

UNIQUE LEGAL CASE IN SAANICHDid Falcon or Falconer Kill Gull?—Court Poser

One of the most unique cases to face the courts here in years came up Thursday in Saanich court when Provincial Museum wildlife illustrator Frank Beebe, 4146 Grange, was charged with killing a seagull, contrary to the federal Migratory Birds Act.

A falcon owned by bird-fancier Beebe killed an immature glaucous-winged gull common to this area on Oct. 15.

Magistrate Henry C. Hall will decide if Mr. Beebe is responsible for the killing by his falcon in a decision to be handed down next Thursday.

Charles Brock Whitney, 4540 Markham, laid the complaint. It was on his upper pasture that the falcon brought the gull down.

Crown prosecutor Terrence O'Grady submitted that the falcon was "the instrument" of guilt, "like a gun in his hand."

HAD PERMITS

Defence counsel T. J. Halbert maintained Mr. Beebe was legally in the right as he had all necessary permits to hunt in any manner he wished, including a federal permit to hunt migratory birds.

He said "the bird was properly killed. Mr. Beebe didn't kill it; it was killed by the falcon, a wild bird, a wild thing."

Prosecution witness, Mr. Whitney, said he saw the two

Plane Snatches 20 From Ice-Floe Death

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—Drifting Station A's 20 man-rooned men were snatched to safety Thursday night in an Arctic rescue carried out in the light of flickering flares.

All 20 rescued scientists and airmen were reported in excellent condition despite five dreary days of isolation.

They were stranded Sunday on the Arctic Ocean 300 miles from the North Pole when an unusual polar storm split their mile-square ice floe.

The scientific station they were maintaining on the floe was an International Geophysical Year project.

They were whisked to safety Thursday night as a C-123 from Thule, Greenland, guided only by the light of a row of flares set out by the stranded men, landed and took them aboard.

The 10-foot-thick ice floe, first manned as an IGY scientific station in the spring of 1957, was cracked into two 1,000-foot-square pieces.

Vancouver Sun
Publisher
Fined $5,000

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson, trial judge in the Sommers Bribery conspiracy case, fined the Vancouver Sun and its publisher, Donald Cromie, a total of $5,000 Thursday for contempt of court.

The publisher and the newspaper each was assessed $2,500 because of an article on the trial and accompanying headlines which appeared in The Sun Aug. 11.

The motion that they be found in contempt was made by J. R. Nicholson, counsel for H. Wilson Gray and Pacific Coast Services, two of the defendants in the lengthy and complex trial. Both were convicted of bribery and conspiring to bribe Robert E. Sommers while he was minister of lands and forests.

SUN AND CROMIE

Mr. Justice Wilson ordered the Sun and Mr. Cromie to pay costs.

Mr. Nicholson sought the contempt citation at the time the article bore the headlines: "Bribery kingpin declines to testify," "H. W. Gray shuns witness box," and "H. W. Gray keeps mum."

In fixing the fines the jurist said:

Mr. Cromie will have to remain in custody of the sheriff until the fine is paid. I can't escape that."

BANKS CLOSED

He relented when Senator J. W. de B. Farris, representing The Sun, noted that the banks had closed for the day. Mr. Justice Wilson gave Mr. Cromie until noon today.

Mr. Justice Wilson said:

"The general level of reporting during the whole course of this trial, in the newspapers and in such radio reports as I have heard, including the Vancouver Sun, has been of a high level and unobjectionable."

"This particular incident, I am bound to say, constitutes a regrettable aberration from that standard, because this headline is offensive and does constitute contempt of court."

"I say that for a newspaper to assert that an accused man is a kingpin in a bribe case before a jury has reached any verdict, and while the case is still before the court, is wrong, and very wrong."

"The consequences of such actions, of course, are unpredictable, but it might well have led to a new trial. I hope that Mr. Cromie, and whoever else is here from the Vancouver Sun, will absorb and remember that. This was a very bad thing to have done."

nation, not just of one member but of the entire cabinet."

"The cabinet assumed collective responsibility for the attorney-general's performance in the Sommers case," Mr. Bryan said. "But the government has established one shameful precedent already in brassing it out this far . . . and knowing their gall, I doubt if they will do the obvious and decent thing now."

Mr. Bonner, in dealing with the statement he is to make on his side of the case, said he has been itching to give it since the early days of the case but had reluctantly heeded his advisers.

He said he has been unable to speak out because the case was sub-judice. If he had spoken earlier, he said, it would have divulged evidence the Crown had for or against Sommers and the others.

Break GM Control Probers Tell U.S.

Anti-Trust Action Against Car Empire Recommended; Practices Criticized

WASHINGTON (AP)—Possible government anti-trust action to break up General Motors Corporation, the world's largest auto maker, is recommended by Senate investigators.

However, Republican Senator Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, takes strong issue with this proposal by the Democratic majority of the anti-trust and monopoly sub-committee.

Recommending that the justice department consider court action against General Motors, the majority said: "The hard core of the monopoly problem in the automobile industry is in the concentration of production and power held by GM."

The report said GM accounts for about 55 per cent of U.S. auto production and "plays the key role in setting price levels for the whole industry."

In Detroit GM spokesmen declined immediate comment.

CITES FAULTS

The report, based on hearings earlier this year, contend that price competition has disappeared in the industry. And it criticized what it calls over-emphasis on high-priced styling changes advertising expenditures and misleading auto financing practices.

Substantial price reductions could be made without any sacrifice in profits, the report said, if auto makers curbed expenditures for styling, advertising and tooling in connection with frequent model changes.

Esk Coach Not Paying Any Attention to Odds

By Canadian Press

Sam Lyle says the football public is underestimating Saskatchewan Roughriders in making Edmonton Eskimos favorites for the Western Football Conference semi-final, opening Saturday afternoon in Regina.

"Those guys have got eight established stars among their 12 imports," says coach Lyle, whose Eskimos have been made as high as 20-point favorites for the two-game, total-point series.

"We've got seven rookies among our 12, yet everybody says 'Look at those Riders, look how they've come along with practically nothing.' Well, they've got a lot more than people seem to think."

NEW EXPERIENCE

Lyle made his observations while his assistants, Ted Youngling and Eagle Keys, went over films and play diagrams, plotting strategy for the playoff series—the first semifinal for Eskimos in six years.

Eskimos have won the league pennant and the bye into the final in each of the last five seasons. This year, Winnipeg Blue Bombers took first place, and they'll have until Nov. 15 to rest and prepare for the best-of-three playoff with the Eskimo-Rider winner. Second game of the semifinal will be in Edmonton Tuesday afternoon.

Two of those pointed out by Lyle as established stars with Riders—halfback Mike Hagler and end Larry Isbell, who handles Saskatchewan's punting, were on the ailing list in Regina, but both will be ready for Saturday's game.

"With Hagler in there," says Lyle, "Riders have an equal threat along the ground and in the air. If he is sound, Hagler can run the wide stuff and if they ever get that little rascal in the open field he's gone."

The catch there might be in the soundness of the 21-year-old speedster from the University of Iowa. He suffered a wrenched knee in the last game of the 16-game schedule.

While he is running again and likely will dismiss his efficiency may be hampered.

Terle has been trying

John Fedesoff running out of Hagler's slot in case Hagler doesn't make it for Saturday.

Basically, Eskimos were healthy as they ran through their last workout in Edmonton Thursday. End Steve Bendahl was the only player not likely to start. He has been out for two weeks with a knee injury.

Quarterback Jackie Parker, who twisted his ankle last weekend, is in good shape.

BIG FOUR WINDUP

Ticats' Attitude Alarms Trimble

HAMILTON (CP)—Coach Jim Trimble of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four Football League has written a letter to every player on the club saying things have reached "rather

He warned older members of the team not to get the idea that they had been given a rest in the last several games.

"Perhaps some of our players are under the erroneous impression that they are being rested, when in reality what is happening is that another member of the squad, perhaps younger and less experienced, but hungrier, is playing better."

AT VANCOUVER

City Runners Face Tough Competition

Victoria runners will run into rugged competition in the annual Pacific Northwest cross-country championships at Vancouver Saturday.

Jim Grell, University of Oregon sensation who defeated top Russian stars in winning the 1,500-metre event in the Moscow relays last summer, is favored to capture the four-mile senior race.

Representing Victoria will be two teams of five cadets each from Royal Roads and a Victoria High School squad.

Members of the Royal Roads senior team are Michael Sullivan, Montgomery McGregor, John Lowthian, Robert Stewart and Roderick Wreford.

Competing for the service college junior squad will be Albert Pchajek, John Ellis, Sam Yakinishyn, Herbert Wildfield and David Smith.

COLWOOD WINNER

Mrs. F. S. Green posted a score of 29 Thursday to win the Royal Colwood Golf Club ladies' division hidden-hole competition. Mrs. D. Ross, who scored 29½, was second.

Fourth Victory For Vic College

Russ Chambers and Derek Hood each collected a try Thursday at Carnarvon Park to pace Victoria College to their fourth Victoria Rugby Union victory of the season, defeating Royal Roads 6-0.

TOTEMS, DOCKERS HIGHLY RATED

School Caggers Bounce Into Action

Old rivalries will be renewed as eight teams swing into action for the first time tonight to push the Inter-High School basketball season off to a fast start.

At Esquimalt, Mount Doug will face Milnes Landing while Oak Bay High takes on North Saanich at Oak Bay. Both games are in the "B" division of the league.

The "A" division contests will see Esquimalt High Dockers battling the Vic High Totems at Esquimalt, and Mount View meeting St. Louis College at Mount View.

One of the best-looking squads on paper is Esquimalt. Having lost only two players, one through graduation and the other because of a transfer to Vic High, the Dockers' lineup is just about the same as last year's. Dockers have been runners-up to the league champions for the last three seasons, but their coach, Jerry Horn, has good reasons to hope for a change this time.

"This team has the material to be up at the top," he said, "but only time will tell."

Vic High's Totems, league champions for the past three years, are out to make it four years. With added help from two transfers, Totems have seven experienced seniors heading the roster.

Oak Bay High's outlook isn't quite as bright. Losing all but one of last year's squad, the Oaks are busy rebuilding their lineup around Wayne Farmer, the lone holdover. This does not discourage coach Gary Taylor though. The Oak Bay mentor was working with some "real talent" in the form of graduating juniors.

Also in the rebuilding stage is Mount Doug's squad. They lost seven seasoned players on the bench this year.

TACKLE COUGARS SATURDAY

Watch Out!--Canuck Kids Rolling

"The kids are rolling and the Canucks are on their way."

Those are words coming from Vancouver hockey fans, who expect their Canucks to go back in front of Victoria Cougars Saturday in the leap-frog race for second place in the Western Hockey League's Coast Division.

Coach Pat Egan and the Cougars are taking the words with a grain of salt and plan to push the Canucks a bit deeper into third place when the clubs tangle at Memorial Arena at 8:30 Saturday night. But they may have some trouble.

Picked by many experts to wind up at the top of the Coast Division, the Canucks got away to a bad start. Then they started climbing and Tuesday moved ahead of the Cougars with a 4-3 victory at Calgary.

Thursday night the Cougars were back in second place, beating Saskatoon Quakers, 1-0, while Canucks were dropping a 6-3 verdict at Edmonton.

But there seems little doubt that the Canucks, who have lost two straight games to the Cats, will be tougher this time. Rebuilding his team with rookies, coach Art Chapman has been expecting a flock of goals from the "kid" line of Mel Pearson, Ted Hampson and Danny Belisle.

The trio took a bit of time to get adjusted to professional company, but has been a hurrying handful in their last few outings.

Belisle rammed in a goal in each of Vancouver's last two games and Hampson hit his fourth goal of the season at Edmonton.

And Walt Peacock, the little rookie from the Okanagan senior loop who can almost be rated in the "kid" class, broke loose for three goals in the Calgary triumph.

With clever veteran Phil Maloney still spearheading the Canuck attack and the youngsters pulling a bigger share of the load, it looks like a busy

Saturday night for the Cougar defence, which has been weakened by the knee injury to Don McLeod.

Egan was still undecided this morning whether rookie Dave Rimstad or newcomer Ted Harris will take over McLeod's berth.

Saturday's game will be the last appearance for the Cats until they complete their first trip through the Prairie Division and return home against Edmonton on Nov. 19.

BALLYMOSS REAL SNOB; SNUBS WORKING CLASS

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Ballymoss, the Irish sensation in next Tuesday's International race, is a horse snob.

Vincent O'Brien, his trainer, was asked whether he used work horses to lead Ballymoss on or off the track.

"No, he shies away from them," O'Brien said. "He won't have anything to do with less than a thoroughbred."

SUIT DISMISSED

'Peg Loses Court Battle

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Manitoba Court of Queen's Bench Thursday dismissed a $125,000 damage suit brought against Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League by Winnipeg Warriors of the Western League.

Mr. Justice A. M. Monnin, in a 29-page judgment, ordered the NHL clubs to return to Warriors $12,621 the western club paid as part of a two-year agreement among the three teams.

Determining a player's calibre, he said, "is a knotty problem." Witnesses and counsel had gone to great lengths during a six-day hearing in September to define a player of WHL ability. In his personal assessment he had been guided by NHL and WHL press and radio guides, which list the players' past performance records.

VANCOUVER

If lacrosse sticks are permitted for Tuesday's exhibition soccer match at Royal Athletic Park, the Victoria and District Football League all-stars may as well stay at Antol Major.

The stars will be tackling Vancouver Pilgrims, who have built their boot squad around the aces of the Pilgrim Inter-City Lacrosse League squad.

Boxle experts who are listed with the kicking Pilgrims are playing manager Bus Byford, Jack Marsh, Bill Chisholm, Bill Mitchell, Tom Murphy, Sam Sakich, Bill Barbour, Bob Anderson, Alfie Brenner, Doug Hemmerling and Don Cummings.

HENDRY TO PLAY

Also available for action are goalie Pat Garrett, halfback Don Hendry, who formerly played with Victoria's Gorge Hotel, Heads, Bob Swinton, Bob Anderson and Colin Fleming.

Dick Carmichael of Ladysmith will guard the goal of the Victoria team, which was picked by the league executive and will be managed by Jack McMillan.

In front of Carmichael will be fullbacks Bill Bamford and Pete Moran. Forming the half-back line will be Joe Hillhouse, Volker Stoldt and Willie Hamilton.

DANGEROUS UNIT

Scoring stars Bill Acklin close at centre-forward and Gogi Stewart at inside-left will spearhead a dangerous

Victoria attacking unit. Henry Vanderhorst will start at outside-right with Taffy Jones at the inside-right position. Patrolling left-wing will be Antol Major.

Listed for reserve duty are Ron Jenkins, Jack Robbins, George Paul and Gary Crowe.

The Order of St. John of Jerusalem medal has been awarded Victoria RCAF Squadron Leader James D. Duncan, 45. He is an administrative officer with the medical branch at Metz, France. The investiture took place in London. The honor is normally reserved for doctors who give outstanding service. It is thought to be the first time a medical administration officer was so honored.

Arena Annex $1 a Head Drive Coming

A one night blitz will be held by the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce late this month to raise $123,000 for an arena annex.

With $25,000 of their own money put away already, the member will be asking for about $1 from each person in Greater Victoria.

The blitz will be in the form of a porchlight campaign, and four loudspeaker-equipped cars will tour the unlit areas asking residents to donate.

Included in the pre-canvass promotional campaign will be store window banners, a barrage balloon, and airplanes trailing streamers.

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable prizes? Write in and Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 30-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and the second question a Hammond's Atlas.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Henley Hemingway, aged 13, of Summerton, S.C., for his question:

What Is A Secretary Bird?

The secretary bird does not take dictation nor does he type. He was named before stenography and typing were required training for a secretary. When your great grandpa was young a secretary worked with a quill pen made from a bird's feather. When not working, the old-time secretary put his quill pen behind his ear, where it stuck out behind his head.

This is how the secretary bird got his name. He wears a dozen or more long quills sticking out from the back of his head. Mr. Secretary stands up straight, as a good secretary should. He is four feet tall and dressed in modest grey and black. The lower legs are long and scaly, the upper legs clothed in glossy knee pants. The wing tips and the tail, which dips to the ground, are also glossy black.

The secretary bird is a neat fellow, very erect and wearing an expression of fierce dig-

Flies Well When He Wishes

The secretary bird rarely takes to the air. However, he can fly if he chooses. When he does so his powerful wings take him high, almost out of sight. After all, he is a member of the high-flying eagle clan.

Mrs. Secretary builds her nest in the low branches of trees or shrubs. The home is a bulky affair, made of sticks and grasses plastered with mud. She lays two or three eggs in August, which is a spring month south of the equator. The babies hatch in about six weeks.

Mr. Secretary does not sit on the eggs. He has other work to do. He is a member of the royal family and has a great sense of property rights. He allows no other secretary bird to come within the neighborhood of his nest. This is his domain and he and

Met Glad Callas Gone

NEW YORK (AP)—Soprano Maria Callas, whose temperament has plunged her into hot water on two continents, has been dropped by the Metropolitan Opera.

Rudolf Bing, the Metropolitan general manager, Thursday cancelled the singer's $18,000 contract for the 1958-59 season, citing refusal to fulfil terms of the pact.

Bing, although extolling the 35-year-old Miss Callas as an artist, added that "the Metropolitan is nevertheless also grateful that the association is ended."

The Brooklyn-born star, of Greek Parentage, now is appearing with the Dallas (Tex.) Civic Opera Company.

Bing accused Miss Callas of trying to force through a last-minute change of the repertoire agreed upon for the current season.

Miss Callas said she objected to singing two Traviatas or two Lucias, both light roles, between performances of Macbeth, a heavy part. She termed the alternation of roles "really dangerous technically."

The singer's contract also called for her to perform in productions of Tosca during the current season.

Bing said ample rest had been provided between the roles. He sent Miss Callas a telegram last Wednesday asking her to abide by the existing agreement. The telegram said her contract would be considered cancelled if she did not reply by 10 a.m. EST Thursday.

Miss Callas did not reply. In Dallas, she said she was too busy with dress rehearsals for Thursday night's Medea to answer what she called Bing's "ultimatum."

In 1955, Miss Callas broke with the Lyric Opera of Chicago. In 1957, both the Vienna and the San Francisco Operas dropped her. Last January Miss Callas walked out of the Rome Opera.

Last June she announced she was shunning Milan's La Scala Opera because of a disagreement with the management.

FOR VANCOUVER IMBIBERS

'Firewater' Sale After Store Blaze

There was to be a firewater fire sale in Vancouver today while Victorians paid the same old prices.

Liquor Control Board chairman Donald McGugan announced the sale, but couldn't say offhand how much of a reduction is being made in regular prices.

The stock-clearing follows a recent fire in Davie Street liquor store.

The sale features bottles with damaged labels.

Hoffmeister Keeps McAdam As Consultant

Former B.C. Agent-General in England, W. A. McAdam, will be retained in a consulting capacity to assist his successor, Maj.-Gen. B. M. Hoffmeister, until Dec. 31.

General Hoffmeister assumed the position Oct. 1. An order-in council approved Thursday authorized Mr. McAdam to be retained at a salary of $875 a month, same as was paid him while he held the office.

The same order authorizes a special warrant to pay $4,925 in travelling expenses to Mr. McAdam for his return to Canada. This is expected to take place early in the new year.

180 PPCLI Donate Blood To Red Cross

Officers and men of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry turned out in large numbers Wednesday for a Red Cross blood clinic at Work Point barracks.

More than 180 of the soldiers donated.

An urgent appeal by Red Cross officials Wednesday for persons with O Rh negative blood produced four Victorians with the rare blood type.

Another contest between four custom car groups will be held tonight at Red Cross House from 7 to 9.30.

Club with the greatest percentage of members giving blood in this time gains possession of a cup.

Clubs are the Quarter Millers, RPM's, Century Toppers, and Saanich Peninsula Auto Re-Styling Club.

LEARNING THE BUSINESS

Residents of the Calgary suburb of Bowness took a second look this week when Mayor Peter Moore showed up to collect their garbage. Mr. Moore, elected for his first term in mid-October, said he wants to learn the town's business from actual experience. The mayor, who sports a red beard and a beret, plans to spend a few days in each civic department here from President Theodor Heuss.

B.C. Shipyard Workers Postpone Strike Talks

Union officials representing 2,600 B.C. shipyard workers today decided to postpone holding strike talks until after they have met with provincial labor department officials in the current deadlock over wages.

Both sides Thursday welcomed the department's offer Wednesday to mediate the dispute involving 22 unions and four major shipyards in Victoria and Vancouver.

But the yards' spokesman, J. W. Hudson, chairman of the B.C. Shipbuilders Federation, reiterated that they were not prepared to negotiate further with the unions.

He said the federation would give the labor department's mediation officer "every consideration," when it was received.

The shipyard men are seeking 12½ per cent more, along with certain contract changes. The yards' position is that workers' pay demands are "pricing them out of jobs and us out of business."

UNIONS TO WAIT

Meanwhile, Sam Jenkins, representing the yard employees, said the unions "want to shy away from any talk of strike until every avenue of

THE PETER TOWNSEND STORY

Love Out in the Open

By NORMAN BARRYMAINE

(Copyright by Peter Davies Ltd.)

CHAPTER 11

If the Queen Mother was aware of her daughter's feelings, then at first she refused to admit it. It is almost certain that the King knew of Margaret's love for Townsend long before he died.

There is the story that one night Margaret and Townsend returned from a late party to the Palace. At the foot of the stairs, Margaret asked Peter to pick her up and carry her upstairs. Townsend demurred, at which point Margaret said, "This is a command, Peter." The command was obeyed, but halfway upstairs one of her shoes fell off and as they were laughing the King appeared on the landing in his dressing gown. Townsend put Margaret down. Frank explanations followed. But the King was not really deceived.

It may be asked: Why did the King permit his daughter to go on spending so much time in company with his Equerry? The answer must be found in the fact that the King was then a very sick man. He could only bear around him, his wife, Margaret, and Townsend.

King Responsible?

So indirectly the King was partly responsible for his younger daughter's falling in love with his Equerry. When did they realize they were in love? It is possible, and I think probable, that the Princess was in love with Peter Townsend long before he fell in love with her. I do not think that even after his own marriage had broken down—and this was long before divorce proceedings—Peter ever saw himself as a suitor for the Princess' hand.

The knowledge that they were in love with each other came no doubt in 1952, during the Court's summer holiday at Balmoral. These long summer days were perhaps the happiest they have ever been permitted to have together.

One of the favorite horse rides of Margaret and Peter was to the top of a hill in sight of Balmoral. At the summit, while the horses rested, they sat together on the heather and gazed around at the hills of lovely Deeside, each one capped by a stone cairn erected by Queen Victoria in commemoration of marriages and other family events.

Memorial to Love

The villagers say that in the summer of 1952 they were sitting on this hill when Margaret, perhaps almost as a dare, placed the first stone for a new cairn. Peter, to please her, followed suit. Then it became a habit, a game. Each day the first one to reach the top of the hill placed another stone on the pile. And so today, on a heather-covered hill where there is nothing to remind a man or woman of the complications of the world, there is a rough cairn, three feet high, built by a princess and an airman.

If their love had been growing over a period, it was not until April, 1953, that Peter Townsend and Princess Margaret decided to marry.

As soon as the couple decided that they wished to marry—and they were fully aware of all the complications—they took independent action.

Peter Townsend went to the Queen's secretary, Sir Alan Lascelles, and told him that he and Princess Margaret wished the Queen and formerly Deputy Master of the Household. He is 38.

The story is of course utterly untrue. It is quite unthinkable that a Royal princess, third in line of succession to Throne, should even contemplate a marriage with a man who has been through the divorce courts...

Townsend Must Go

On Monday morning of June 15, 1953—the day after the article appeared in The People—Sir Alan Lascelles and Commander Colville went to the Queen with a copy of the newspaper. They said it was now impossible to stop the British press from discussing the affair between Princess Margaret and Group Captain Townsend. Only one course of action was open:

Townsend must leave his post as Comptroller of the Queen Mother's Household and he must be given a post abroad. Still the Queen hesitated.

That afternoon Sir Alan asked Sir Winston Churchill to use his influence with the Queen.

This is how Sir Winston summarized the situation. The Cabinet was unanimously against the marriage. If such a marriage were proposed after Princess Margaret was 25 and free from the control of the Queen, Parliament would be unlikely to agree to it unless the Princess renounced her right of succession and that of any heirs of the marriage and also gave up her income under the Civil List.

All this would require a special act of Parliament and under the provisions of the Statute of Westminster, similar Acts of Parliament would have to be passed by the Parliaments of Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa.

The Attorney-General in preparing his memorandum had consulted the Commonwealth Premiers and found that some, particularly the Canadian, were apprehensive about altering the royal line of succession.

The Queen was impressed by these arguments and promised to give immediate consideration to Townsend's leaving London. But first she must discuss the situation with Princess Margaret. She did not wish to hurt her feelings.

A promise to Princess Margaret, that she had no intention of renouncing her love for Townsend and that a way had to be found through the legal tangles for her to marry him.

Bombshell Burst

The bombshell burst the day after the Coronation. The New York press was full of the romance. Stories had been appearing in American newspapers for many months.

A week later, a British mass circulation Sunday newspaper, The People, broke the news to the British public.

"It is high time for the British public to be made aware of the fact that scandalous rumors about Princess Margaret are racing around the world. Newspapers in both Europe and America are openly asserting that the Princess is in love with a divorced man and that she wishes to marry him."

"Every newspaper which has printed the story names the man as Group Captain Peter Townsend, Equerry to the Queen. Townsend would not be sent to Balmoral as air Attaché until she returned from Africa, is broken... Read about it in Chapter 13 Friday.

AT CHEQUE FORGERY TRIAL

He's Not the Man, Says Teller

Mrs. Jean Wilson of the Canadian Bank of Commerce in Victoria told in Assize Court Thursday of cashing a cheque alleged to have been forged by 33-year-old William Black.

She identified a cheque handed to her in the witness box as the one she cashed for a man who entered the Fort Street branch of the bank around 10:30 a.m. on July 24.

But she said, very definitely, that this man was not the man in the dock—the accused William Black.

Answering James Proudfoot, Black's counsel, Mrs.

"Wilson said the man who presented the cheque was 'quite fair' (whereas William Black is very dark).

POSITIVE

"Are you positive the man in the dock is not the man who gave you the cheque?" asked Mr. Proudfoot.

"Yes," answered Mrs. Wilson.

Asked to describe the man who presented the cheque, she said he was fair, dressed in blue, about 28 years old and six feet high.

"No," Mrs. Wilson replied.

"Could you recognize the man who gave you this cheque?"

"I don't think so."

Sergeant Norman Duxbury, RCMP scientific expert, testified that a typewriter found at Black's apartment produced letters identical with the typewriting on some of the alleged forged cheques.

He mentioned "a slight misformation" of the letter "O" which showed in some of the cheques and "a slight misalignment" in the keyboard which also showed.

The hearing continued today.

'TOO DRUNK TO ABUSE'

DENVER (AP)—Mrs. Cora Belle Cox, 80, won a divorce in court Wednesday by answering just one question.

Asked Judge Marshall Quiat: "Did your husband ever abuse you?" Said Mrs. Cox: "Heavens, no, judge. He was always too drunk."

FROM THIS TO THAT

Drab and depressing appearance of View Street, typical of any shopping street in Canada, would be transformed into an attractive and spacious pedestrian mall if the first phase of the Garnett plan for downtown improvement is carried out. Picture on left shows View's appearance from Blanshard to Government today. On right is the sketch showing how it would look from the top of the proposed parking garage as pedestrian mall stretched down to Broad with only Douglas cutting through two-block section. At net cost of about $660,000 parking space for 350 cars would be erected, some stores relocated, breathing space for shoppers provided and revenue accumulated for financing of other needed improvement projects — all without raising taxes. Cars would enter garage by Blanshard and View, pedestrians by arcades leading to Blanshard, Yates and Foul. Plan was drawn up under supervision of city engineer J.C. Garnett.

MONTE ROBERTS

The Liquor Control Board is about to open a new emporium, in which the drinking public may obtain spirituous liquors at a nominal fee, plus abominable taxes (including 5 per cent for the Social Credits.)

This new establishment will open its doors at 10 a.m. Wednesday, near the junction of Esquimalt and Admirals.

It is a very modern, streamlined, handsome structure, and I hope it will be very successful.

But I am a bit worried over the fact there appears to be little planning for the advertising and promotion of the opening.

Surely the LCB could use a little imagination, and follow the lead of supermarkets and gas stations which have enough sense to stage a Grand Opening at the drop of a latch key.

It is a well-known fact in advertising and promotional circles that a change of location is a splendid opportunity to bring in new customers.

Therefore—at the risk of being accused of interfering with the appointed duties of the Booze Board—I hereby make a few suggestions.

Let the Grand Opening of the new Esquimalt LCB store be a Grand Opening in every sense of the phrase.

Searchlights, of course, should point their brilliant fingers to the sky as a mass display of firewater cascades in all directions.

There should be special inducements for customers on opening day. To the first 20 who make a purchase, a free membership in Alcoholics Anonymous.

To those who are not able to take immediate advantage of their purchase, there should be a convenient layaway plan. (For the purchaser, not the purchase.)

A women's group should be approached to hold a sale of home cooking. The one which comes to mind is the WCTU.

Naturally, there should be continuous entertainment, provided by Lawrence Belch and his Champagne Music.

With songs by Phil Harris.

To the customer with the most outstanding hangover, a year's supply of acetylsalicylic acid.

And, of course, as the highlight of the Grand Opening, the Attorney-General will throw out the first drunk.

Dear LCB, I beg of you, please use a little imagination when you open your new Esquimalt store.

After all, next comes Oak Bay. And who wants to attend a tea party?

Nature Artist Work Praised At New York

Fenwick Lansdowne, 21-year-old Victoria artist whose specialty is bird painting, is in New York today attending the opening of the first showing of his work outside Canada.

His mother, Mrs. E. Lansdowne, 1978 Forrester, has received a one-word telegram from him: "Okay."

And early notices from New York indicate his reception there is indeed "okay."

Forty of "Fen's" paintings are on display at the New York headquarters of the National Audubon Society.

In introducing the Victoria artist, John H. Baker, president of the society, said he was "an inspiration to all lovers of nature."

Critics who attended the opening said Lansdowne brought a breath of outdoor life to the city.

Sailor Dies Of Gun Wound

A man identified as P.O. Harry V. Hamilton, 28, crew member of HMCS Cayuga, died in St. Joseph's Hospital today of a gunshot wound in the head.

RCMP from Colwood found him in a car at the side of Happy Valley Road, and near the Baxter Road intersection. There was a .22 rifle in the car.

Hamilton is survived by a widow, Lily, at the family home in Sardis, near Chilliwack.

Contributions to the office grew to $1,644 today. Donations to other municipal offices, a bank and a Nova Scotia Club sent current total collected in Greater Victoria over the $3,000 mark.

TO FORT LANGLEY

They will attend special Douglas Day ceremonies commemorating the birth of the province, at the restored Fort Langley, Nov. 19.

The visit to Victoria will include disembarking ceremonies at Washington State Ferries' wharf at the Inner Harbor, where Mayor Percy Scurrah will make a welcoming speech.

A naval guard of honor will be inspected by the governor-general on the wharf.

This will be the second military formality attending the visit to Victoria. The Crescent and her vice-regal passengers will be given a Royal salute by RCA gunners as the ship passes Macaulay Point.

Premier Host

The vice-regal party will attend a dinner at Empress Hotel, as guests of the province, with Premier W. A. C. Bennett as host.

Speakers on the amalgamation question are still wanted for the Junior Chamber of Commerce forum Nov. 25 in Central Junior High School. Both proponents and opponents of the Victoria-Saanich merger proposal are asked to phone Eric Charman at EV 5-6741.

Bridegroom Loses Wallet Containing Credit Cards

Saturday's wedding and honeymoon to follow for a Vancouver traveller and his Oak Bay fiancee will be off to a literally "poor" start if his lost wallet isn't found.

Ray Baldwin, staying at the Empire Hotel, lost the black, squat wallet "somewhere" in Victoria Thursday. It contained about 20 credit cards and his driver's licence.

Invited guests signed a release absolving the government of claims for damages in case of injury but public works lawyers also demanded that coin of the realm change hands.

DO-IT-YOURSELF FERRY SERVICE ENDS ABRUPTLY

Two young men who "missed the boat" but took an alternative one valued at $1,100 pleaded guilty to the theft in city police court today.

Robert Ritchie, Vancouver, and Donald Johnson, PPCI, were headed for the CPR boat to Vancouver Wednesday, apparently missed it, and took a boat from the Causeway float belonging to Elmer R. Wilson.

Both admitted to drinking at the time.

They managed to get about a mile outside the harbor, ostensibly headed for Vancouver, when the motor conked out. A naval vessel picked them up.

The pair were remanded to Nov. 14 for sentence.

Full Itinerary On Massey Visit

Governor-General Vincent Massey and lieutenant-governors of B.C., Alberta and Saskatchewan will arrive at Victoria aboard HMCS Crescent for a two-day visit at 3 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 20.

Details of the itinerary planned for the dignitaries were outlined today by the provincial secretary's office.

Governor-General Massey, Frank L. Bastedo, representing Saskatchewan, and John J. Bowlen, representing Alberta, will be guests of Lieutenant Governor Frank McKenzie Ross and the province during the period Nov. 16 to 22, which has been designated as Governor-General and Lieutenant-Governor's Week.

City clerks office will close the Springfield disaster fund next Thursday, Mayor Percy Scurrah said today.

Council may add a city contribution to the fund when it meets that day.

Contributions to the office grew to $1,644 today. Donations to other municipal offices, a bank and a Nova Scotia Club sent current total collected in Greater Victoria over the $3,000 mark.

BIG RIP' HASSEL NOW TOLD

It took a federal government order-in-council to settle the question of who should push the button for the $3,000,000 Ripple Rock explosion on the west coast April 5, it was reported from Ottawa today.

Nobody wanted the honor for fear of being held responsible for any subsequent damages, said Charles Hurst of the public works department.

And 201 invited guests "sold" their claims on government pensions in the event of injury, he said, each getting one of the special silver dollars minted in honor of the British Columbia centennial.

TOOLD ENGINEERS

Mr. Hurst, chief of the marine engineering division for public works, made these facts known at a luncheon meeting of the Engineering Institute of Canada, Ottawa branch.

Mr. Hurst said the problem of who dared to push the button was straightened out by an order-in-council authorizing the destruction of the top of Ripple Rock by explosives.

The explosives manufacturers and contractors had declined the honor. Finally a public works representative, Dr. Victor Dolmaga, a consulting engineer, did the job.

Invited guests signed a release absolving the government of claims for damages in case of injury but public works lawyers also demanded that coin of the realm change hands.

At 2:30 p.m. the Governor-General will visit the Victoria

City Willing to Pay Own Debt in Merger

AMALGAMATION REPORT

This is the ninth of 10 parts presenting the text of a report made by Dr. J. J. Deutsch to a Victoria-Saanich committee in which amalgamation of the two municipalities was recommended. The report is being printed in a serial form in the interests of voters who may cast ballots on the question.

From the foregoing analyses it would appear that it should be possible to devise policies which are, taken as a whole, reasonably fair and practical for a united municipality.

It is necessary now to attempt to illustrate how amalgamation along the lines suggested above might affect the levels of taxation. The calendar year 1959 has been chosen for purposes of illustration, although it is realized that amalgamation if it is decided upon might take place during the course of a year, or at the beginning of some other year.

The purpose is simply to illustrate the probable effects during the first year of amalgamation. In this calculation it can be assumed that the total non-tax revenues of the united municipality would at the outset until any new policies are worked out be approximately the same as the sum of the non-tax revenues which would have been received by the separate municipalities.

Consequently any immediate additional costs and savings resulting from amalgamation would in the early stages bear upon the tax levies on property. In the following table an attempt is made to estimate the probable amount of the general tax levy during the first year of amalgamation.

Taxation on Real Property in the United Municipality Basis Estimated for Calendar Year 1959

(Thousands of Dollars)

General Levies and General Debt Levies As Separate Municipalities	Victoria	Saanich
	2,511	962

Add

Costs of additional services to be financed from general municipality revenues of united municipality:

Garbage collection in Saanich	75
Street Lighting in Saanich	17

Road and street maintenance in Saanich

40

132

3,605

Deduct

Cost of services to be transferred to Special Area Levies:

Cost of sewer and storm drainage maintenance and rehabilitation in Victoria

177

Possible immediate savings resulting from integration of services

100

277

Total General Levies on Real Property in the United Municipality

3,328

An important item which would affect tax levy is the provincial per capita grant to the united municipality. The situation concerning public health services in Saanich has already been discussed. Under the formula used for the per capita grant, the per capita amount declines when the population increases beyond certain limits.

Under the effect of this formula there would be a loss in the per capita grant to the united municipality of $104,000. This would have to be absorbed in the general tax levy unless this loss could be avoided through arrangement with the Provincial Government.

Two items in the above calculation require further comment, namely the possible immediate savings resulting from the integration of services and the possible loss of grants and assistance from the provincial government.

With regard to savings it should be possible to achieve reduction in general overhead costs fairly quickly by a sum approaching $100,000, through the elimination of duplications which could be dispensed with immediately, reduction in executive council expenses, reductions in inventories of all kinds, reductions in temporary and part-time staffs, more intensive use of existing equipment, etc.

He claimed the report's estimated $320,000 anticipated capital expenditures for city sewers in the next five years should have been higher. Saanich's spending estimate for sewers is $2,400,000.

With regard to savings it should be possible to achieve reduction in general overhead costs fairly quickly by a sum approaching $100,000, through the elimination of duplications which could be dispensed with immediately, reduction in executive council expenses, reductions in inventories of all kinds, reductions in temporary and part-time staffs, more intensive use of existing equipment, etc.

Q. Can you tell me what sum of money the Community Chest manager receives for managing the campaign? J.M.A.

A. It is a voluntary job. He receives nothing.

Q. What was last year's immigration total to Canada? M.P.L.

A. It was 282,164, an increase of nearly 120,000 over the previous year and highest since the record year of 1912.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Edward Zwolak, 2033 Chaufer, was fined $50 or given the option of 30 days in jail in Saanich police court Thursday when found guilty of discharging a firearm in Saanich contrary to the bylaw.

He had pumped off one shot at a duck, and missed, when police arrived.

Pork Butt Roast Treat For Weekend Dinners!

By PENNY SAVER

What an inexpensive treat for this Sunday's dinner! A boneless pork butt roast selling at 49 cents a pound.

My cook book says that one of these roasts with approximate weight of four to six pounds, should be cooked at 350 degrees Fahrenheit for 45 to 50 minutes per pound of roast. See how the family will praise your choice in weekend menu planning when they're served such a delectable dinner!

Swiss chard is a versatile vegetable! It's good "in the raw" for salads or sandwiches or cooked as a hot, savory dish. Two pounds of chard come at 25 cents. This nutritious, leafy vegetable goes a long way!

They're sweet, moist and ever so tasty topped with butter. I mean . . . yams, of course. Red yams are priced at two pounds for 39 cents right now. Don't miss this reasonable buy!

Mushrooms seem to be mighty plentiful this year, so, if you are fond of this delicacy, go quickly to this shop where they are selling mushrooms at 43 cents a half pound.

Another special for this time of year is smoked cod fillet.

This is a locally caught fish and it's selling at an amazingly low price of 35 cents a pound.

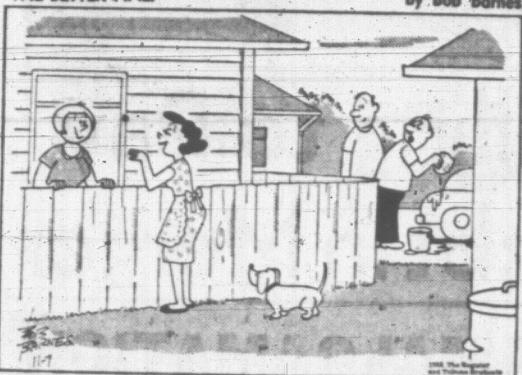

Seven cents cheaper than last year are Sidney clams, selling fresh every day at this fish market! Think of tasty, hot clam chowder . . . you'll immediately want to dash off to this shop selling clams at two pounds for 35 cents.

Hot from the oven and spread with sweet butter or strawberry jam; whole wheat raisin scones will be number one hit for breakfast or tea come Sunday! A dozen of the extra-special scones are 40 cents.

Come . . . give me a telephone call at EV 2-3131. I'll tell you where I shopped.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Things Are Tough All Over!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem in my office. Everyone but myself is either on a diet or is talking about food and weight. It is driving me batty. When I bring a piece of cake with my lunch they make me feel like a criminal. One girl told another girl I brought fattening things on purpose to make her drool. I am inclined toward being slim and can't help it if she is a fat slab. These girls are ruining what was once a pleasant job. Any suggestions?

THE GIRL AT UNITED.

DEAR GIRL: People who are fighting the battle of the bulge need all the help they can get. Slip away and eat the sweets in private like a good girl.

DEAR ABBY: This may sound terrible but it is true. I have lost all respect for my mother. She will tell me to do something and I know she won't say anything if I don't do it, so I don't. I have been asked to clean up my room but I keep on letting it go because my mother will do it if I wait long enough. I am 15 years old and admit I am spoiled because I get just about anything I want, but I am not happy. My girlfriend does the family laundry on weekends, has to do dishes every night and doesn't even get an allowance and she is much happier than I am. I can't figure it out. Abby, can you?

UNHAPPY.

DEAR UNHAPPY: The child who is given responsibility at home, and is made to bear the mark, is always much happier. Children need to be disciplined to feel secure.

DEAR ABBY: A few weeks ago a fellow named DANNY wrote to you asking how to meet a nice woman. Object—marriage. I was in his boat a few years back and I tried for two years, after my wife died, to find a nice woman, but the result was zero. Finally

I advertised in a newspaper for a housekeeper. Did I get answers? About a hundred of them. To make a long story short, a nice, single lady, age 40, got the job. She has been here ever since. I married her and no two people have ever been happier.

GUY.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my lazy sister. She married a worthless bum and eight years later she presented my mother with eight children to raise for her. My mother is sickly and old and lives on a widow's pension.

She raised her own family and I don't see why she should have to raise my sister's eight. Sometimes I feel so sorry for Mamma I could cry. I'd take the load off her myself but I have seven of my own to raise. Will you please tell me what can be done about this problem? SAD SISTER.

JOBS. Your housekeeper has as much right to Mrs. Wilson as you have to Mrs. Jones. It is comparable to a president of a company calling a file clerk or secretary Miss Clark. Your Mrs. Wilson can perform her prescribed duties as well as if she were Sadie Zilch and calling her that shouldn't mean that she is giving herself a superficial push up a ladder. She undoubtedly has an innate dignity that would result in an innate respect from her employer. It is possible that she is a well-bred, well-educated woman who must necessarily earn her living as best she can and may not have the professional qualifications to do anything else.

Victorian Drives Patrol Car In Montana Blizzard

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Phyl Masters, back from a fabulous trip to New York and Montreal, has a story of being snowed in somewhere in Montana last week and being rescued by the highway patrol.

With travelling companions Dr. Olive Sadler and Miss Betty Lord, both of Vancouver, she was motoring home across the northern United States.

Day before they hit the snow they were in a heat wave at Chamberlain in South Dakota. Even late at night the temperature registered 86 degrees and they were glad the auto court they were in was air conditioned.

Next morning it was "glorious," to quote Phyl Masters.

Elizabeth

Sun was shining and skies blue. The travelers decided to see the Bad Lands and the famed Rushmore monument with its huge stone faces carved high on the mountain.

First inkling of a storm came when they stopped to take color pictures of the monument. "Wind was blowing so hard we had difficulty in getting out of the car," Phyl says, "but the sky was still blue and we delayed to eat our lunch.

"One sandwich later, that sky had turned slate grey, there were flakes of snow flying all around us and the wind was screaming wildly.

"And I mean screaming!"

The three friends made their way down the mountain to the gold mining town of Deadwood City where they checked the weather reports. Windstorms like these were common occurrences around those parts, they were told. Forecast was for rain and more wind—that was all.

With snow still flying, they checked again at a town called Belle Fourche. Same story.

So, they set out for Broadus. On an isolated section of highway, they hit the blizzard. Wind went to 100 miles an hour and the snow made visibility almost nil.

The way Phyl Masters describes it: "We crawled along with all lights going to warn other cars. We couldn't see much but we could hear telephone poles cracking and falling. It wasn't funny. I can tell you."

Car Bogged Down in Deep Snow

They would have made it, she thinks, if they hadn't stopped to take aboard a woman and a small child who were fighting their way along the side of the road after checking to see if a flock of sheep on the next ranch were all right. "When they let them out again, the car slipped sideways, snow (by now almost 18 inches deep) got into its innards and they bogged down.

Immediately they made preparations to spend the night. But 20 minutes later the car door opened and there stood a tall, good-looking Montana State Highway patrolman.

"Well, what is your problem?" was the way he greeted them.

The three women were so pleased to see him they dubbed him "Ernie the Angel."

Cars were in the ditch before and behind them, he said. But if two of them would volunteer to drive his patrol car—he would try to get their car six miles up the road to a shack maintained for linemen, where they would spend the night with other storm-bound travelers.

Betty Lord and Phyl said they'd drive the patrol car.

The shack was a one-room affair, with no conveniences of any kind. There was a small stove in one corner, a table and a few rough chairs. That's all.

With a doctor in their party, the three women were soon busy. They kept the fire going, melted snow to get boiling water and were ready to help the 36 motorists who were finally piled into the room for the night.

Many were in a state of shock.

With the dawn the storm abated and by 10 a.m., most of the motorists were back on the highway.

The three women stopped in Broadus to have their car checked and were told that the little town, ill-prepared for an influx of so many people, had given shelter to 40 in the jail overnight. With wires down, there was no light and little heat. But the townsfolk took hot food to the jail and did what they could to help.

Sixty miles out along the highway "we ran out of the snow and back into sunshine and blue skies," Phyl Masters concludes her story.

You realize, however, it isn't an experience she would like to repeat when she says that a hunter died of exposure in the hills that night and another man was found dead right alongside the highway.

CLUB CALENDAR

December Bazaar — At a meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Senior Citizens Housing Society it was decided to hold a bazaar on Dec. 3 at 1635 John Street. There will be stalls of home cooking and superfluities, also tea cup reading and a door prize. Afternoon tea will be served. Proceeds will go toward providing an automatic toaster and dryer for Banfield Lodge.

Gives Knitting—A member of Robert Burns McMicking Chapter, IODE, donated knitted wear to the value of $11 for overseas relief at a recent meeting of the chapter. A sum of $50 was voted to the provincial IODE guest house and $25 to both overseas relief and Korean funds. Final plans were made for the chapter's hors d'oeuvres party to be held at home of Mrs. Owen Fowler, 2730 Thorpe Place.

Nov. 22. A report was given on the tea for the blind held recently. A sum of $5 was also voted to the Mary Croft Memorial fund.

Plan Fete—At a meeting of St. Mary's Anglican Church evening branch, woman's auxiliary, final plans were made for the annual bazaar to take place Wednesday in the parish hall. Affair will commence at 11 a.m. with a coffee party and will continue until 5 p.m. with tea served in the afternoon. Stalls and conveners are Mrs. W. A. Welland, home cooking; Mrs. W. C. Dods-worth, needlework; Mrs. L. Lancaster, attic treasures; Mrs. B. Edkins, jewelry; Mrs. W. T. Pearson, greeting cards; Mrs. W. J. Westby, plants; Mrs. W. W. Boulter, children's wear; Mrs. H. K. Newell, nursery, and Mrs. F. J. Cowdry, refreshments.

Out-of-town guests attending the 45th annual Police Ball in the Empress Hotel this evening include Sgt. Gene Steele and Mrs. Steele, Sgt. J. Bergin and Mrs. Bergin, Mr. and Chef L. K. Dreher assists Mr. and Mrs. L. Roe, and the latter's sister, Mrs. Leslie Simmonds, right, to make a choice of foods at the smorgasbord dinner in the Empress Hotel. Mrs. Simmonds came from Chicago to visit her sister and to attend the wedding of their niece, Miss Marilyn Roe, and Mr. Kenneth Thompson, last weekend.

Popular Dinner Starts Season

Friendly informality was a keynote at the first smorgasbord dinner of the winter season in the Empress Hotel, Thursday evening.

The buffet serving tables, placed in a hollow square in the centre of the Empress Room, were filled with foods, both cold and hot, to tempt guests to return again and again. A huge ice carving of an eagle glittered under the lights of the chandeliers. Chefs in tall white hats assisted the guests to make their selections.

Every table in the huge dining room was filled, and the sound of friendly talk and laughter added a final note to the evening.

Manager of the hotel, Mr. C. Chapman, and Mrs. Chapman entertained a party of friends in their suite at the hotel before coming down to the smorgasbord. The gathering was planned to honor Mr. and Mrs. J. Harold Wilson and Mrs. Eve Elizabeth Robertson who leave shortly on an extended trip abroad. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pollard and Mr. R. W. Phillips.

Rev. T. Bailey of St. Barnabas Church and Mrs. Badley were dining with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Irwin and Dr. and Mrs. Jack Anderson.

Associates of Miss Lynne McNab in the dispatch office at Victoria Press were feted by their prior to her departure for Vancouver-to-make-her-home.

Others in the party were Mrs. Hugh Wade, Mrs. Leonard Glancy, Mrs. Gary Jones, Miss Barbara Floyd and Miss Mary Mountain. The honor guest was wearing an orchid, a gift from her friends.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Rutherford were together. Dr. and Mrs. R. G. Whitehead were at a table for two.

Another party included Capt. C. L. Harris, Miss Margaret Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Graham Harris and Mr. and Mrs. George Fox.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Straith, Mrs. Ann Walden and Mrs. Lew Straith were dining together.

Another family party included Mr. and Mrs. Walter Luney, Mr. and Mrs. William Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Robin Clark and Miss Nancy Clark.

Lady Drayton entertained a party of friends at the smor-gasbord. The Prince-and-Princess Abkazi were also there with friends.

Before leaving the hotel many of the diners made a point of viewing the conservatory, where a magnificent display of chrysanthemums is now at its best.

London Offices Ban Stiletto Heels

LONDON (Reuters) — The

"click-click-click" of stiletto heels may sound daringly sophisticated to the pretty young things wearing them;

but to office managers, dance hall owners and street engineers they sound trouble.

So much damage is being done by the steel-tipped shoes that girls are being asked not to wear them, the London Daily

Sketch reported today.

In Nottingham, some offices banned girls from wearing the stiletto heels at a local ballroom. And in another suburban town, Carshalton, a sur-

"FOREST" CEDAR SIDING

WHAT IS FOREST SIDING?

Made of dry 1 1/2" Stock 8, 10 and 12-inch widths, "FOREST" Siding is a new type of Siding obtained from specially selected Cedar logs sawn to show the beauty and character of knots, burls, etc.

WHAT ARE ITS QUALITIES?

"FOREST" Siding with its substantial thickness and greater wood volume adds to the structural strength and solidity of the building.

The design of "FOREST" Siding ensures a tight weather seal of the lap which, together with its base principle, makes excellent insulation material from the insulation standpoint.

"FOREST" Siding represents an economy to home-builders. Costing less than most other types of Siding the lap design ensures easy fitting and speedy application at less labor cost.

'Where Am I? Where Am I?...I Am Not Armed'

"I am not armed" slaying suspect Matthew John Till was quoted as saying to his captors after wrecking the truck he drove the day after a double-slaying at Metchosin.

The words were quoted at the fourth day of 16-year-old Till's preliminary hearing Thursday at Victoria RCMP Court where he faces a charge of murdering his 38-year-old foster father Charles E. Mudge.

Cpl. William A. Weeks of Duncan RCMP detachment assisted in taking Till in custody about 17 hours after discovery of the tragedy Sept. 18 at 3460 Metchosin.

He said Till's first words when the police looked into the overturned truck were:

"Where am I? Where am I?" Cpl. Weeks, who was accompanied by Const. Jack Wiegert, also of Duncan, added:

"I believe he said 'I am not armed.' I said 'Are you sure?' He said 'Yes.'"

SHOCKED

The witness said: "We spoke to him, but I do not believe he understood what was going on around him. He seemed to be shocked."

Bodies of Mudge and his father-in-law, John Brand, 71, who lived with the Mjudges and Till, were found at the Metchosin home after Mrs. Phyllis Mudge, 28, staggered to a neighbor's house in a badly beaten condition about 8:40 p.m. Sept. 13.

The discovery set off an area-wide manhunt which tracked down a half-ton pickup truck owned by Mudge, about eight miles west of Shawnigan Lake the afternoon of the next day.

Cpl. Weeks described how he and the constable spotted the truck coming toward their patrol car as they drove west.

They tried to flag it down, he said, but it went past them and over a rise in the road.

IN DITCH

When they got their police car turned around and over the crest they saw the truck in a ditch on its right side.

The witness said he looked in the right window and saw Till slumped down, bleeding from wounds on his throat and forehead.

Const. William MacKenzie, of Colwood, said when the Duncan officers brought Till in a short, time later he had blood on his face and neck and it had dripped down on his shirt; he appeared confused.

Cpl. Weeks said he found a hunting knife on the floor of the pickup truck after Till had been removed with the aid of two passing hunters.

This hunting knife and another taken from the scene of the slayings by Consts. F. W. C. Minty, also of Colwood, were released by Magistrate A. L. Thomas for further investigation at Regina RCMP crime laboratory.

Cpl. Hugh George Van Dusen, Regina crime laboratory, said he will attempt to link one of the knives to, or eliminate them from, a small metal stay taken from a woman's girdle also introduced as Crown evidence.

SMALL NICK

The stay was removed from the girdle by Const. William R. Picton, hair and fibre expert from the Regina laboratory. He said it had a small nick.

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court Thursday:

Peter Koel, 536 Dallas, careless driving, $35.

Ellard D. Braitenbach, RCN, no driver's licence, $25.

Donald A. Farquhar, 2012 Romney, making wrong turn, $10.

In Saanich police court Thursday:

Robert W. Rose, careless driving, $35.

David W. MacDonald, 4794 Interurban, careless driving, $35.

which apparently was made by a sharp instrument.

The girdle, a slip, brassiere, pants and skirt, all taken from the Mudge house after the crime, were introduced as evidence.

Const. Picton said all had been slashed from hem to hem by a knife. Either of the hunting knives could have done it, he said.

The second knife was found by Const. Minty where the body of Mudge had lain in the basement, the hearing was told.

There were hunting knife sheaths entered as exhibits in he said. A spent shotgun shell clothing taken from Mudge's body and from Till when he was in hospital.

TESTS CONDUCTED

Cpl. Van Dusen, a ballistics expert, said he conducted several tests on two rifles and a shotgun turned over to him.

He test fired the rifles and determined spent cartridges found in them had been fired in the respective rifles.

They were a Marlin .30-30 carbine and a Lee-Enfield .303 sporting rifle. The shotgun was a J. C. Higgins 12-gauge, sheaths entered as exhibits in he said. A spent shotgun shell he tested came from that shotgun, the witness said.

A sample of flesh bearing a shotgun wound and a work-type shirt were tested for powder particles with negative result, Cpl. Van Dusen said.

But the flesh wound bore traces of shotgun cartridge wadding of a type found in a major make of 12-gauge ammunition, he said.

Further tests determined the wound was made from a distance of four to 12 feet.

SHOT IN BACK

In previous evidence it was stated Mudge had been shot in the back by a shotgun.

Thursday morning defence counsel Joseph McKenna questioned the authority of Const. Robert C. King, Victoria RCMP, in taking a specimen palmprint from Till as he was held in Oakalla jail. It was later matched with prints on blood on broken glass found at the Mudge house.

"There was no objection on the part of the accused when the palmprints were taken," Const. King said.

"How could he object?" Mr. McKenna asked.

"Well, you don't know," Magistrate Thomas interjected.

"I do know. There were two guards there in the jail and the accused is only 16 years old," counsel said.

He maintained there was nothing in the Identification of Criminals Act nor in the accompanying order in council to authorize the taking of palmprints.

Const. King said palmprinting is part of fingerprinting procedure covered by the order.

First expert witness Thursday was Mrs. Winnifred M. Dureault, blood expert from the Regina crime lab.

She produced a quantity of items, most of them blood-stained, which she received from Const. Minty.

Included were a red shirt, pieces of broken milk bottle, scrapings from the kitchen floor, two tea towels, a ladies' housecoat with a huge stained area, a bedspread and basement stair scrapping all bearing group "O" bloodstains.

Other items bearing bloodstains of undetermined grouping included an envelope addressed to "Johnny Till," two pairs of woolen socks, a face cloth, a T-shirt, a ladies' buttonless blouse, a ladies' apron ripped into two pieces and the other items of women's clothing mentioned earlier.

Const. Picton testified the buttons had been pulled from the blouse and that the apron had been torn, not cut.

A Matter of Honor

On December 7, 1955, Attorney-General Robert Bonner was told that his colleague, Mr. Robert Sommers, had accepted certain moneys, possibly as bribes. Next day Mr. Bonner sent a contemptuous telegram to the accuser, Mr. David Sturdy, in which he said that these charges, "coinciding with a by-election," filled him with "profound skepticism towards the entire matter" and "seem far-fetched."

The whole matter, Mr. Bonner evidently hoped, was at an end. In fact, it was only beginning. Though Sommers and H. Wilson Gray were convicted this week of conspiracy and bribery and await sentence, the matter is not, or should not, be finished even yet.

The courts have dealt with Sommers and Wilson Gray. They have disagreed regarding Charles Schultz, John M. Gray and B.C. Forest Products, and these presumably will be tried again. The courts having spoken, there is no need to comment on any of these persons.

But what about Mr. Bonner? Who is to deal with him?

Mr. Bonner is accused of no crime. His personal honesty is not questioned. Nevertheless, while he has not been on trial in the courts of law he has been on trial in the court of public opinion. And the verdict on Sommers is a verdict, so far as the public is concerned, on Mr. Bonner's conduct as attorney-general.

The verdict means, and can only mean, that Mr. Bonner has been derelict in his duty as the first law officer of the Crown and is unfit for his office.

Readers of this newspaper will understand that, until today, it has not been free to comment on a case before the courts. Only now, after nearly three years of delay, is it proper to analyze Mr. Bonner's extraordinary conduct and that of his leader, Mr. Bennett.

The inner facts did not emerge, indeed, until near the end of the Sommers trial. Then, for the first time, the public learned of the conversation between Mr. Bonner and Sommers on December 7, 1955, immediately after Mr. Sturdy had departed with his "far-fetched" evidence.

Under oath, Sommers testified that he had told Mr. Bonner of the money which he had received from Wilson Gray and which he regarded as innocent loans.

Mr. Bonner, strangely enough, did not suspect that any crime might have been committed. He did not feel that this ugly business required any criminal prosecution or even any further inquiry. He brushed it off with a telegram.

But he knew, according to Sommers' statement under oath, that Sommers had been taking money, legally, or illegally, from Gray. Whether he suspected Gray's purpose or not, Mr. Bonner must have known, if he was fit for his office, if he knew anything about our constitution, that no cabinet minister should be taking money for any purpose whatever from such sources. He knew that, legally or illegally, Sommers had committed an offence unpardonable in any Cabinet minister.

Yet at that time, and for some time afterwards, Mr. Bonner did nothing to get to the bottom of this affair, to clear the name of his colleague or to punish him. On the contrary, according to Sommers' evidence, Mr. Bonner did everything possible to protect his colleague, and discourage any further discussion.

Sommers says he had given notes to Gray for the so-called "loans" and, on December 7, 1955, had told Mr. Bonner of these notes. According to Sommers, Mr. Bonner "advised me to get those notes in my possession immediately, as he said the situation might be misunderstood or misconstrued."

Asked whether Mr. Bonner and the Cabinet knew that he was favorably disposed to a certain forest management licence application, Sommers said he could not answer. He could not reveal Cabinet secrets.

He said, however, that he had arranged for a bank loan to repay Gray "on the formal instructions drafted by the attorney-general." Sommers produced in court a document which, he swore, contained the formal instructions to the bank and to Gray, as drafted by the attorney-general.

Mr. Bonner's informal instructions to Sommers were, in effect, to keep quiet about the "loans" from Gray. This pact of secrecy was maintained for many months.

When Sommers resigned from the Cabinet but remained in the Legislature he made a speech accusing various persons of a conspiracy to wreck him and British Columbia's timber conservation policy. But he said nothing about the "loans". Why, the prosecution asked, had he not mentioned them? Sommers said he was advised not to do so by the attorney-general. Only three persons, Sommers says, knew that he had raised $8,000 at the bank to repay the "loans" (the bank loan being later repaid by an anonymous benefactor). Those three were Mr. Bennett, Mr. Bonner and Mr. Einar Gunderson.

On Sommers' evidence, therefore, Mr. Bonner knew, or should have known, from the beginning, that something very wrong was afoot, whether it was a crime or only an act of gross ministerial misconduct.

Even assuming that Sommers' court evidence is inaccurate, that Mr. Bonner did not know in the beginning about the loans from Gray, it is still true that the attorney-general should have realized, after his meeting with Messrs. Sturdy and Eversfield nearly three years ago, that his clear duty was to get all the facts and protect the Government's integrity.

Still he did nothing while Sommers launched a farcical libel suit which effectively prevented any public comment until the autumn of 1957.

In the meantime Mr. Bennett had not been idle. Before the libel suit could be tried, before the public could learn whether a great department of state had been corrupted, Mr. Bennett called the snap election of September 19, 1956, and won it easily.

Meanwhile also, Mr. Bonner had experienced second thoughts very late. He instructed the Mounted Police to investigate the matter which he had formerly considered a "far-fetched" political stunt.

A furious debate in the Legislature could not compel him to reveal the results of that investigation nor did he suggest that he had further action in mind. His excuse for inaction was that the matter already was before the courts in the form of the libel suit, though as a lawyer he must have known the invariable rule governing such a situation—namely, that criminal proceedings always take precedence over a civil case. His duty was to enforce the law but for nearly two years he took no action against Sommers.

When at last Sommers announced by radio from a point of seclusion that he had taken innocent "loans" from Gray; when the libel suit collapsed because Sommers did not appear, then for the first time Mr. Bonner took action. The government set up a royal commission to study the whole matter. The commission had hardly begun, however, before he changed his mind again and prosecuted Sommers together with other persons.

There is the record of the attorney-general—the record, one might almost say, of the case of Bonner versus the People.

The courts have spoken on the guilt or innocence of the accused. It is for the people to speak on Mr. Bonner's worthiness to hold his office. Concerning that question there surely can be only one answer: Mr. Bonner is unworthy, and should be dismissed.

Here a grave responsibility devolves upon Mr. Bennett, who alone can appoint or dismiss his colleagues. But Mr. Bennett's own position in the Sommers case is really no better than Mr. Bonner's.

According to Sommers, Mr. Bennett (along with the ever-present Mr. Gunderson) knew from the beginning that Sommers had taken money where he had no moral right to take it, whether his act was legal or illegal. Mr. Bennett knew, according to Sommers, but he did nothing—except to call an election before the facts could emerge.

The only excuse that Mr. Bennett can make is that, as a layman, he relied, in a legal matter, on his legal expert, Mr. Bonner. It is a lame excuse but no doubt it will be made to serve. If so, how can Mr. Bennett retain such an inept adviser?

The public will await Mr. Bennett's answer to that question and the Legislature should insist on having it.

While it is unnecessary now to go over the record of the longest trial in British Columbia's history, one gratifying fact—the fact which underpins our whole system of human freedom—should be noted. The courts have been delayed by many distractions but steadily, day by day, month by month, they have groped toward the truth and reached a verdict.

Under such a judge as Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson (whose conduct in an infinitely complex and exhausting case was a model of decorum, whose summation will go down as a legal classic) the law is safe.

And that fact, much more than the pitiable persons immediately involved, is the important, lasting fact of the Sommers case.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Thursday lawyer David Sturdy apparently didn't intend to be "taken seriously" in December, 1955, when he first presented documents which started the Sommers case.

The attorney-general was commenting on Mr. Sturdy's statement in Vancouver that Mr. Bonner "gave me ridiculous reasons" for not starting an immediate investigation.

"Looking back," said Mr. Bonner, "I can only feel that he (Mr. Sturdy) did not then intend to be taken seriously."

It should be pointed out that following his visit, Eversfield returned promptly to California and so far as I am aware remained out of the country until October or November of last year.

Mr. Bonner was referring to Charles Eversfield, chief crown witness in the bribery-conspiracy trial which resulted in the conviction of former lands and forests minister Robert Sommers.

The attorney-general said the absence of evidence in support of Eversfield's affi-

Sturdy Threatens To Expose Report If Bonner Stays

Lawyer to Bare RCMP Findings

ARTHUR LAING
... "abuse of the law"

Lawyer ... Sturdy of Vancouver, who started the long trail of events in the Sommers case nearly three years ago, today threatened to make public the substance of the famous RCMP "Butler" report in the case if Attorney-General Robert Bonner does not resign.

This was the latest development in the sensational case which has resulted in the conviction of the former lands and forests minister Robert Sommers on bribery and conspiracy charges.

Others in the last 24 hours are:

- The trial judge, Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson adjourned for one week the sentencing of Sommers, H. Wilson Gray and his companies.

- Sommers' resignation as MLA for Rossland-Trail was announced by his counsel, Angelo Branca.

- Mr. Bonner declared the government will call a byelection in Rossland-Trail before the legislature meets Jan. 22.

- Liberal Leader Arthur Laing made his first comments on the case, demanding Mr. Bonner's resignation.

- The attorney-general was meeting with his legal advisers at press time to decide if re-trials should be ordered on 19 charges on which the jury couldn't agree.

- Mr. Bonner replied to Mr. Sturdy's statement in connection with the attorney-general's delay in ordering prosecution of Sommers.

- Mr. Bonner promised to give the full story of his side of the case today or Saturday.

- Mel Bryan, former Socred member of the House who crossed the floor to sit as an independent last February, called for immediate resignation of Premier Bennett and his government.

The report referred to by Mr. Sturdy was made by RCMP Insp. W. J. Butler after he was ordered by Mr. Bonner to investigate allegations of bribery against Sommers, then a member of the provincial cabinet, by Mr. Sturdy and his

Charles W. Eversfield, former accountant of Pacific Coast Services Limited.

The company and its president, H. Wilson Gray, were convicted with Sommers of bribery and conspiracy.

Officers rushed the restaurant, in this Newfoundland community 175 miles northwest of St. John's, after exchanging shots with the men.

The victims found in the cafe were identified as James Ling, owner of the establishment, and Thomas Ling, both of Chinese origin.

The constable was identified as J. Terrance Hoey, 21, of Peterborough, Ont. He joined the force Jan. 6, 1958, and was posted to Botwood, Nov. 1.

He was shot down when he and another policeman entered the restaurant after employees said the proprietor refused to let them in.

The Lings had locked themselves in a bedroom. The constable was hit as he tried to force open the bedroom door.

It was not disclosed how the Lings died.

SHOTS THEN FIRE

Fire broke out in the restaurant shortly after the shooting. Fire Chief Graham LeDrew was hit in the arm by a bullet while leading his men in the battle against the blaze.

The fire at one time threatened nearby buildings.

Police surrounded the building and exchanged shots with the men. An attempt to drive them out with tear gas failed.

After the fire was brought under control police broke into the restaurant.

No explanation was given for the men's behavior. An informed source said James Ling closed up the restaurant as usual Saturday night. When he didn't reopen for business and refused to admit employees police were asked to investigate.

That would mean the election date could be shortly after Dec. 8.

The government welcomes the news" (of the resignation) said Mr. Bonner, "because it clears the way for the representation of the riding of Rossland-Trail at the next session of the House."

The attorney-general says the Social Credit party will contest the by-election and "we have every optimism for a successful outcome."

Off-Year Record High

WASHINGTON (AP)—A record vote for a non-presidential election year was registered in Tuesday's congressional balloting.

Unofficial and still incomplete tabulations showed that more than 46,000,000 votes were cast in election contests in the 48 states.

MOON SHOT DELAYED

'Strange Tapping' in Missile

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla., launching was called off at 12:34 a.m.

The air force has two more chances to shoot for the moon this month—in the early morning hours of Saturday and Sunday and then only within a critical time period of 18 to 20 minutes.

The Pioneer moon rocket glowed under floodlights for more than two hours in a driving rain storm before the time on a moon launching is critical because the planes of the earth and moon are in the opportune position for just brief periods each day.

If the missile men fail to fire within the specified time, they will have to wait until early December.

The launching was less than an hour away from zero when the noise was heard.

Sommers' Case Sentences Due Next Week

VANCOUVER (CP)—The final act in Canada's longest criminal trial will come some time next week with the sentencing of a former provincial cabinet minister, his convicted co-conspirator and two companies said to have been used as part of a bribery plot.

Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson told a packed courtroom Thursday he would put off for a week the sentencing of 47-year-old former forests minister Robert Sommers, timber company president H. Wilson Gray and his firms, Pacific Coast Services Ltd. and Evergreen Lumber Sales.

An intricate point of law was involved in the question of maximum penalties and the justice needed time to study it. He said if he could cut through the legal maze sooner, he would call court before next Thursday.

COURT JAMMED

More than 150 spectators jammed the court, expecting to see the climax to a trial that lasted 79 days and ended with verdicts by a jury of nine men and three women last Saturday and Wednesday.

Sommers, who resigned from the cabinet in 1956, faces sentences for conspiracy and five counts of bribery, while Gray faces penalties for conspiracy and eight charges of bribery.

His companies also face fines, but his counsel, J. R. Nicholson, asked the justice to consider that 28 families depend on the Pacific firm for their livelihood and a heavy fine might mean ruin.

Mr. Justice Wilson said consideration of the financial position of a convicted person or corporation could result in a millionaire getting a heavy fine and a poor man a small fine for the same crime.

REPORT PLOT

A Vancouver newspaper revealed a plot to kill the justice and had caused police to guard his Kerrisdale home. The jurist showed no signs of strain as he entered the packed court.

He heard arguments from Mr. Nicholson and Sommers' counsel, Angelo Franca, that the maximums should be no more than one year on conspiracy and one year on each bribery count. But the prosecutor, Victor Dryer, maintained that on conspiracy the penalty was seven years under the old code and five years under the new code and he thought the latter should apply.

The legal question arises because the indictment was switched from the new to the old Criminal Code halfway

5 Lost in Lake As Rig Wrecked

From Times News Services
U.S. Coast Guard officials at Erie, Pa., today reported finding the body of a man believed to be one of five Canadians reported missing after a portable drilling rig capsized in Lake Erie.

Earlier the Coast Guard said a utility crash boat had recovered wreckage of a small wooden shack, quarters for the men on the drilling rig.

The body was found tied to a rubber life raft about eight miles north of Erie.

Earlier from Port Burwell, Ont., it was reported that 60-mile-an-hour winds had demolished the rig while the men were dismantling it. They were identified as geologist Jack Bogan of Ottawa, William Marsh Jr. and Leroy Bauwens, both of Bothwell, and George Mitchell and Walter Kozlof, both of Dresden.

NO EVIDENCE GIVEN BENNETT

Suspicious Only States Ex-MLA

VANCOUVER (CP)—Former MLA J. Gordon Gibson said Thursday that he advanced suspicions rather than evidence when he appeared before Premier Bennett in 1955 in connection with the granting of forest management licences.

"I said I had informed Mr. Bennett of the suspicions I had at that time and what basis I had for them. Obviously I did not then or at any time have all the evidence when he was told Wednesday of $5,000 in fines levied against that paper and its publisher."

Mr. Gibson directed his remarks to an article appearing in the press Thursday, in which he commented on the results of the Sommers bribery case.

He said his reference to the responsibility of the whole of the cabinet related strictly to forestry policies and not to management.

"Sometimes you do get some cheerful news," he smiled.

FOR CONTEMPT

Vancouver Sun
Publisher
Fined $5,000

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson, trial judge in the Sommers Bribery conspiracy case, fined the Vancouver Sun and its publisher, Donald Cromie, a total of $5,000 Thursday for contempt of court.

The publisher and the newspaper each was assessed $2,500 because of an article on the trial and accompanying headlines which appeared in The Sun Aug. 11.

The motion that they be found in contempt was made by J. R. Nicholson, counsel for H. Wilson Gray and Pacific Coast Services, two of the defendants in the lengthy and complex trial. Both were convicted of bribery and conspiring to bribe Robert E. Sommers while he was minister of lands and forests.

SUN AND CROMIE

Mr. Justice Wilson ordered the Sun and Mr. Cromie to pay costs.

Mr. Nicholson sought the contempt citation at the time the article bore the headlines: "Bribery kingpin declines to testify," "H. W. Gray shuns witness box," and "H. W. Gray keeps mum."

In fixing the fines the jurist said:

Mr. Cromie will have to remain in custody of the sheriff until the fine is paid. I can't escape that."

BANKS CLOSED

He relented when Senator J. W. de B. Farris, representing The Sun, noted that the banks had closed for the day. Mr. Justice Wilson gave Mr. Cromie until noon today.

Mr. Justice Wilson said:

"The general level of reporting during the whole course of this trial, in the newspapers and in such radio reports as I have heard, including the Vancouver Sun, has been of a high level and unobjectionable."

"This particular incident, I am bound to say, constitutes a regrettable aberration from that standard, because this headline is offensive and does constitute contempt of court."

"I say that for a newspaper to assert that an accused man is a kingpin in a bribe case before a jury has reached any verdict, and while the case is still before the court, is wrong, and very wrong."

"The consequences of such actions, of course, are unpredictable, but it might well have led to a new trial. I hope that Mr. Cromie, and whoever else is here from the Vancouver Sun, will absorb and remember that. This was a very bad thing to have done."

nation, not just of one member but of the entire cabinet."

"The cabinet assumed collective responsibility for the attorney-general's performance in the Sommers case." Mr. Bryan said. "But the government has established one shameful precedent already in brassing it out this far . . . and knowing their gall, I doubt if they will do the obvious and decent thing now."

Mr. Bonner, in dealing with the statement he is to make on his side of the case, said he has been itching to give it since the early days of the case but had reluctantly heeded his advisers.

He said he has been unable to speak out because the case was sub-judge. If he had spoken earlier, he said, it would have divulged evidence the Crown had for or against Sommers and the others.

OUTDOOR REPORT BY Doug Peden

Don't let this spell of warm sunshine fool you, brother. This is November.

Once we get by the pranks of Halloween, we're in the mad moon of game animals and the trouble month for humans who pack rifles into the woods. Despite the outlook today, we could have rain, fog, snow, ice or blizzards tomorrow. It's time for deer hunters to do some thinking.

With the normal rough weather of late November, which adds poor visibility to fewer hours of daylight, always comes an increased danger of getting confused in the woods.

The danger of becoming lost is a constant companion of all who follow the game trails. Never a November passes without parties being organized to search for hunters who have failed to return from a hunting trip. Too often we learn that some of the searches could have been avoided had the lost hunters taken proper pre-trip precautions.

Let it be understood that there should be no stigma attached to being lost in the hills. It has happened to some famous woodsmen. But spare no shame for those who go into the bush without being fully prepared.

Although the responsibility of coming safely out of the woods rests squarely on the shoulders of the man who goes in, he is not the only one to suffer if he fails to return on schedule. Survival is seldom a personal thing. It can involve many people and organizations, sometimes whole communities.

The Search Starts on a Small Scale

When a man fails to return as scheduled from a hunting trip, rescue attempts usually start on a small scale and concern only his hunting companions and friends. But if the search goes into a second day, it soon grows into a sizeable operation, involving game wardens, police, outdoor organizations and volunteers.

Among the groups usually assisting in searches in this area are the South Vancouver Island Rangers, who train members in search procedures. However, the rangers must be numbered with the volunteers, who willingly join a battle to save the life of a man most have never seen. They take time off from their regular jobs and expose themselves to many of the dangers which have trapped the hunter. They also leave behind families who now worry about the safety of the rescuers as others worry about the man they seek.

Thus, survival is not a personal affair. Police and game department procedures are interrupted, money is consumed by a search and many dollars are lopped off cheques of volunteers.

None of the searchers mind the hardships if their efforts result in the rescue of a man who is injured or otherwise trapped in the woods through no fault of his own. All are angry if it is learned the man became lost through carelessness.

There is a vast difference between being lost and having to spend a night in the woods. It is always possible that by following a deer late in the evening, or through a bout of confusion, that a hunter may not reach the road before dark. Yet there is seldom any excuse for becoming hopelessly lost.

There Are Three Basic Survival Items

Pages could be written on how to travel safely in the woods, but the chances are they have little effect. Wise hunters already know what precautions to take. The foolish ones—the guys who say, "It can't happen to me"—will learn only after they have experienced the panic that can strike the unprepared.

The wise hunter will always carry the three basic survival items—matches in a waterproof container, a sturdy knife and a good compass. And he'll keep a cool head in an emergency, for panic can rob a man of energy and thinking ability and increase the chances of injury.

He'll make mental notes of his route as he hunts and know what general direction to travel on his return trek. If he should have to spend a night in the hills, he will try to select a sheltered place with a handy supply of firewood before darkness sets in.

The matches will start the necessary fire. The knife will provide firewood and have many other uses. The compass is the one safety item that can be counted on to guide him out of the woods in the morning with a minimum of effort.

If unable to travel further, or hopelessly lost, he'll stay right where he is, knowing that with a fire he can survive several days without food. He knows that assistance will eventually reach him, provided he remains healthy enough to help his rescuers, and that his experience will soon become only a memory.

For the foolish hunter, who heads into unfamiliar country without a compass and unprepared to spend a November night in the woods, the story could have a less pleasant ending.

Worried Packer Coach Blames It All on CAHA

VANCOUVER (CP) — Kelowna Packers, off to defend Canadian hockey honor in Russia, say the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association let them down when they needed help.

Coach Jack O'Reilly told reporters as his Allan Cup finalists left by plane Thursday night that he asked the CAHA for player aid in August "and we still haven't got it."

Packers, in the Okanagan Senior League, are off on a three-week, nine-game exhibition tour of Sweden and Russia. They will be the first Canadian team to play in Russia.

O'Reilly said Packers sent the CAHA a list of 50 players from which reinforcements could be selected.

Packers headed for Montreal and will leave there by plane tonight. They are to arrive in Stockholm tomorrow and will meet Sweden in four games — Nov. 9, 11, 12 and 13. Then they travel to Moscow for five engagements—Nov. 16, 18, 19, 21 and 23. They return home Nov. 24.

In goal will be Dave Gatherum, with Marv Edwards as a substitute. Defencemen are Tom Stecyk, Harry Smith, Andy McCallum, Bob Bergeron, Jack Lancien. Forwards: Bill Jones, Moe Young, Jim Middleton, Brian Roche, Mike Durban, Bill Swarbrick, Gerry Goyer, Greg Jablowski, Russ Kowalchuk, Freddie Dummore, Clare Wakwinski.

Accompanying them was old-time hockey great Fred (Cyclone) Taylor of Vancouver. He is paying his own way and has no official connection with the team. "I just want to see for myself how good the Russians are," Taylor said.

The Order of St. John of Jerusalem medal has been awarded Victoria RCAF Squadron Leader James D. Duncan, 45. He is an administrative officer with the medical branch at Metz, France. The investiture took place in London. The honor is normally reserved for doctors who give outstanding service. It is thought to be the first time a medical administration officer was so honored.

Elected vice-presidents of the North Kiwanis Club are Daryl Elford and R. M. Smith.

Also elected at the meeting Tuesday evening were: Angus Smith, secretary; and directors, Alfred Atherton, Dr. John Dickinson, George Knight, Ben Lang, Jack Moore, William Steen, and Peter Wright.

Elected previously by acclamation were president Percy

Wright and P. S. Ballam, treasurer.

Arena Annex $1. a Head Drive Coming

A one night blitz will be held by the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce late this month to raise $123,000 for an arena annex.

With $25,000 of their own money put away already, the member will be asking for about $1 from each person in Greater Victoria.

The blitz will be in the form of a porchlight campaign, and four loudspeaker-equipped cars will tour the unlit areas asking residents to donate.

Included in the pre-canvass promotional campaign will be store window banners, a barrage balloon, and airplanes trailing streamers.

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit questions he selects. The answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question received each day receives a 20-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Henry Hemingway, aged 13, of Summerton, S.C., for his question:

What Is A Secretary Bird?

The secretary bird does not take dictation nor does he type. He was named before stenography and typing were required training for a secretary. When your great grandpa was young a secretary worked with a quill pen made from a bird's feather. When not working, the old-time secretary put his quill pen behind his ear, where it stuck out behind his head.

This is how the secretary bird got his name. He wears a dozen or more long quills sticking out from the back of his head. Mr. Secretary stands up straight, as a good secretary should. He is four feet tall and dressed in modest grey and black. The lower legs are long and scaly, the upper legs clothed in glossy knee pants. The wing tips and the tail, which dips to the ground, are also glossy black.

The secretary bird is a neat fellow, very erect and wearing an expression of fierce dignity.

South Africans often adopt a secretary bird, but not to take dictation. The fierce hunter keeps the farm clear of snakes and rodents. The bird's long, slim lower legs are tough and scaly, making it difficult for the snake to bite. The bird dances around the snake with wings outspread. From time to time it dances on the snake, clawing it with his talons.

Mrs. Secretary builds her nest in the low branches of trees or shrubs. The home is a bulky affair, made of sticks and grasses plastered with mud. She lays two or three eggs in August, which is a spring month south of the equator. The babies hatch about six weeks.

Mr. Secretary does not sit on the eggs. He has other work to do. He is a member of the royal family and has a great sense of property rights. He allows no other secretary bird to come within the neighborhood of his nest. This is his domain and he and his wife occupy the same nest year after year.

STURDY, LAING DEMAND BONNER'S RESIGNATION

EDITORIAL

A Matter of Honor

On December 7, 1955, Attorney-General Robert Bonner was told that his colleague, Mr. Robert Sommers, had accepted certain moneys, possibly as bribes. Next day Mr. Bonner sent a contemptuous telegram to the accuser, Mr. David Sturdy, in which he said that these charges, "coinciding with a by-election," filled him with "profound skepticism towards the entire matter" and "seem far-fetched."

The whole matter, Mr. Bonner evidently hoped, was at an end. In fact, it was only beginning. Though Sommers and H. Wilson Gray were convicted this week of conspiracy and bribery and await sentence, the matter is not, or should not, be finished even yet.

The courts have dealt with Sommers and Wilson Gray. They have disagreed regarding Charles Schultz, John M. Gray and B.C. Forest Products, and these presumably will be tried again. The courts having spoken, there is no need to comment on any of these persons.

But what about Mr. Bonner? Who is to deal with him?

Mr. Bonner is accused of no crime. His personal honesty is not questioned. Nevertheless, while he has not been on trial in the courts of law he has been on trial in the court of public opinion. And the verdict on Sommers is a verdict, so far as the public is concerned, on Mr. Bonner's conduct as attorney-general.

The verdict means, and can only mean, that Mr. Bonner has been derelict in his duty as the first law officer of the Crown and is unfit for his office.

Readers of this newspaper will understand that, until today, it has not been free to comment on a case before the courts. Only now, after nearly three years of delay, is it proper to analyze Mr. Bonner's extraordinary conduct and that of his leader, Mr. Bennett.

The inner facts did not emerge, indeed, until near the end of the Sommers trial. Then, for the first time, the public learned of the conversation between Mr. Bonner and Sommers on December 7, 1955, immediately after Mr. Sturdy had departed with his "far-fetched" evidence.

Under oath, Sommers testified that he had told Mr. Bonner of the money which he had received from Wilson Gray and which he regarded as innocent loans.

Mr. Bonner, strangely enough, did not suspect that any crime might have been committed. He did not know that this ugly business required any criminal prosecution or even any further inquiry. He brushed it off with a telegram.

But he knew, according to Sommers' statement under oath, that Sommers had been taking money, legally, or illegally, from Gray. Whether he suspected Gray's purpose or not, Mr. Bonner must have known, if he was fit for his office, if he knew anything about our constitution, that no cabinet minister should be taking money for any purpose whatever from such sources. He knew that, legally or illegally, Sommers had committed an offence unpardonable in any Cabinet minister.

Yet at that time, and for some time afterwards, Mr. Bonner did nothing to get to the bottom of this affair, to clear the name of his colleague or to punish him. On the contrary, according to Sommers' evidence, Mr. Bonner did everything possible to protect his colleague, and discourage any further discussion.

Sommers says he had given notes to Gray for the so-called "loans" and, on December 7, 1955, had told Mr. Bonner of these notes. According to Sommers, Mr. Bonner "advised me to get those notes in my possession immediately, as he said the situation might be misunderstood or misconstrued."

Asked whether Mr. Bonner and the Cabinet knew that he was favorably disposed to a certain forest management licence application, Sommers said he could not answer. He could not reveal Cabinet secrets.

He said, however, that he had arranged for a bank loan to repay Gray "on the formal instructions drafted by the attorney-general." Sommers produced in court a document which, he swore, contained the formal instructions to the bank and to Gray, as drafted by the attorney-general.

Mr. Bonner's informal instructions to Sommers were, in effect, to keep quiet about the "loans" from Gray. This pact of secrecy was maintained for many months.

When Sommers resigned from the Cabinet but remained in the Legislature he made a speech accusing various persons of a conspiracy to wreck him and British Columbia's timber conservation policy. But he said nothing about the "loans". Why, the prosecution asked, had he not mentioned them? Sommers said he was advised not to do so by the attorney-general.

Only three persons, Sommers says, knew that he had

Gunfight Kills RCMP Officer, Two Chinese

BOTWOOD, Nfld. (CP) — Two men who barricaded themselves in a burning restaurant after an RCMP constable was shot to death were found dead today when police broke into the building.

Officers rushed the restaurant, in this Newfoundland community 175 miles northwest of St. John's, after exchanging shots with the men.

The victims found in the cafe were identified as James Ling, owner of the establishment, and Thomas Ling, both of Chinese origin.

The constable was identified as J. Terrance Hoey, 21, of Peterborough, Ont. He joined the force Jan. 6, 1958, and was posted to Botwood, Nov. 1.

He was shot down when he and another policeman entered the restaurant after employees said the proprietor refused to let them in.

The Lings had locked themselves in a bedroom. The constable was hit as he tried to force open the bedroom door. It was not disclosed how the Lings died.

SHOTS, THEN FIRE

Fire broke out in the restaurant shortly after the shooting. Fire Chief Graham LeDrew was hit in the arm by a bullet while leading his men in the battle against the blaze.

The fire at one time threatened nearby buildings.

Police surrounded the building and exchanged shots with the men. An attempt to drive them out with tear gas failed.

After the fire was brought under control police broke into the restaurant.

No explanation was given for the men's behavior. An informed source said James Ling closed up the restaurant as usual Saturday night. When he didn't reopen for business and refused to admit employees police were asked to investigate.

BONNER LOOKS BACK

Sturdy Didn't Intend To Be Taken Serious

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Thursday lawyer David Sturdy apparently didn't intend to be "taken seriously" in December, 1955, when he first presented documents which started the Sommers case.

The attorney-general was commenting on Mr. Sturdy's statement in Vancouver that Mr. Bonner "gave me ridiculous reasons" for not starting an immediate investigation.

"Looking back," said Mr. Bonner, "I can only feel that he (Mr. Sturdy) did not then intend to be taken seriously."

In the intervening time, news accounts have lost sight of the fact that the only thing left in my office as a result of that interview was an affidavit with a single scrap of evidence to establish its contents.

"The commencement of the lengthy investigation which occurred prior to the trial followed."

He said that in the reports from Vancouver Mr. Sturdy quotes my telegram to him, in which I drew attention to the fact that his document was unsupported.

"It should be pointed out that following his visit, Eversfield returned promptly to California and so far as I am aware remained out of the country until October or November of last year."

TV Quizmaster Under Arrest

NEW YORK (AP) — Albert Freedman, producer of the defunct television show Twenty-One, was arrested today on a two-count indictment charging that he lied in denying that he supplied answers to contestants on the show.

Freedman thus became the first to be indicted in the probe of television shows after rigging charges were brought against them.

The rigging charge was brought by Herbert Stempel of New York, a former contestant.

Stempel said he had been coached on some questions and had been told to lose to Charles van Doren, who won $129,000.

The indictment charges that Freedman "knowingly lied" when he denied having revealed questions or answers to contestants on the show. The indictment further said "he had, in fact, revealed questions and answers" to contestants "prior to their appearance on Twenty-One."

Diefenbaker Welcomed To Germany

BONN (Reuters) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker arrived today by air for an official visit to West Germany.

Former Threatens To Expose Famous 'Butler' Report

Lawyer David Sturdy of Vancouver, who started the long trail of events in the Sommers case nearly three years ago, today threatened to make public the substance of the famous RCMP "Butler" report in the case if Attorney-General Robert Bonner does not resign.

This was the latest development in the sensational case which has resulted in the conviction of the former lands and forests minister Robert Sommers on bribery and conspiracy charges.

Others in the last 24 hours are:

• The trial judge, Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson adjourned for one week the sentencing of Sommers, H. Wilson Gray and his companies.

• Sommers' resignation as MLA for Rossland-Trail was announced by his counsel, Angelo Branca.

• Mr. Bonner declared the government will call a byelection in Rossland-Trail before the legislature meets Jan. 22.

• Liberal Leader Arthur Laing made his first comments on the case, demanding Mr. Bonner's resignation.

• The attorney-general was meeting with his legal advisers at press time to decide if re-trials should be ordered on 19 charges on which the jury couldn't agree.

• Mr. Bonner replied to Mr. Sturdy's statement in connection with the attorney-general's delay in ordering prosecution of Sommers.

• Mr. Bonner promised to give the full story of his side of the case today or Saturday.

• Mel Bryan, former Socred member of the House who crossed the floor to sit as an independent last February, called for immediate resignation of Premier Bennett and his government.

The report referred to by Mr. Sturdy was made by RCMP Insp. W. J. Butler after he was ordered by Mr. Bonner to investigate allegations of bribery against Sommers, then a member of the provincial cabinet, by Mr. Sturdy and his

Charles W. Eversfield, former accountant of Pacific Coast Services Limited.

The company and its president, H. Wilson Gray, were convicted with Sommers of bribery and conspiracy.

"Answer Is in Butler Report"

Contents of Insp. Butler's report have never been made public.

If Mr. Bonner is claiming good faith in the matter of his delay in ordering the criminal prosecution, the answer to his charge is contained in the Butler report which I have read," said Mr. Sturdy in an interview. "If he doesn't resign, I will disclose its contents."

He was replying to a statement made Thursday night by Mr. Bonner that Mr. Sturdy apparently didn't intend to be "taken seriously" when he visited the attorney-general Dec. 7, 1955, with allegations against Sommers.

Mr. Sturdy said he has read the secret report and will not hesitate to divulge its contents if Mr. Bonner refuses to submit his resignation as attorney-general.

Meanwhile, the Social Credit government apparently has decided to meet the storm of word to press time.

NO EVIDENCE GIVEN BENNETT

Suspicious Only States Ex-MLA

VANCOUVER (CP) — Former MLA J. Gordon Gibson said Thursday that he advanced suspicions rather than evidence when he appeared before Premier Bennett in 1955 in connection with the granting of forest management licences.

"I said I had informed Mr. Bennett of the suspicions I had at that time and what basis I had for them. Obviously I did not then or at any time have all the evidence now before Mr. Justice Wilson."

Mr. Gibson directed his remarks to an article appearing in the press Thursday, in which he commented on the grants.

"Sometimes you do get some cheerful news in this business," he smiled.

S. Korea Airman Shot For Hijacking Plane
SEOUL, Korea (AP)—A former South Korean air force captain, Choi Jung Il, died before a firing squad Thursday for trying to hijack a C-46 transport to Communist North Korea last April. The 32-year-old captain killed a crew member and wounded the pilot before he was overpowered by the crew.

Mine Disaster Probe Ordered

Royal Commission Announced as Last Body Brought Up From Springhill Pit

SPRINGHILL, N.S. (CP)—A royal commission to investigate the Cumberland No. 2 upheaval Oct. 23 that killed 74 miners was announced Thursday night, a few hours before the last two bodies were removed from the depths.

The body of Fidele Allen was the last brought to the surface after two weeks of digging.

One hundred men were rescued in the bump that occurred two weeks ago in the Cumberland Railway and Coal Co. colliery, deepest in North America.

SECOND WORST

Nineteen survivors were found alive after long days and nights entombed without food and water. The disaster, second in two years, was the worst in Canadian coal mining history since the 1920s.

The royal commission is expected to have terms of reference similar to one which investigated a 1956 explosion in No. 4 mine that killed 39 men. Eighty-eight were saved. Commission personnel have not been announced.

Meanwhile, Nova Scotia Mines Minister Edward A. Manson was to meet today with Labor Minister Stephen Pyke to discuss the town's rehabilitation.

Last week officials of A. V. Roe (Canada) Ltd., which controls Dosco, indicated No. 2 would not reopen. About 900 miners were employed in the colliery, the town's only major industry.

Although the future looks bleak, the miners' immediate needs are expected to be met by a national disaster relief fund which Thursday passed the $700,000 mark.

The town continues to bury its dead while recovering some of its composure after two weeks of suffering and misery. Sixteen of the 19 miracle miners leave by plane Nov. 18 for a free vacation in Georgia as guests of Governor Marvin Griffin. The other three are still recovering from their long confinement.

Stacey Leaving For Ottawa Talk

British Columbia Agricultural Minister Newton P. Steacy left Victoria today for Ottawa to attend an annual meeting of Canadian agriculture ministers and their deputies. The meeting begins Nov. 12. Following the visit to Ottawa, Mr. Steacy will travel to Toronto to attend the Winter Fair there.

59'S NEWEST IS THE 59 METEOR • 59'S NEWEST IS Distinctive all-new Meteor is Canada's exclusive fine car in the low price field—a move upward in classic styling, a move ahead in new performance.

The 59 Meteor offers you 59's newest engines with Econ-O-Fuel design. Six or V-8, with advanced short-stroke design, both provide increased mileage on lower-priced regular gas, together with sparkling response.

59's newest engines give you power you can use, power that's harnessed better, for use within normal driving speeds.

That's because the 59 Meteor offers you an all-new choice of automatic transmissions—Multi-Drive Merc-O-Matic, with two drive ranges to master all driving conditions, and new Econ-O-Matic, the simplest, most economical automatic yet designed.

For ultimate performance, there's even a 303 hp Meteor engine, the most responsive Tempest V-8 ever built.

But whichever power team you choose, the all-new Meteor gives you a quality of performance, of riding comfort and handling ease that's way ahead of its price class.

There just isn't an easier standard steering than 59 Meteor's improved Finger-Touch ball-race steering. And as for 59 Meteor's new Balanced-Ride, you've got to drive a Meteor to appreciate the difference.

The 59 Meteor is no ordinary car. It is Canada's exclusive fine car in the low price field . . . and 59's newest performer. Settle for nothing less. Move to distinctive Meteor today!

Certain features illustrated or mentioned are standard on some models, optional at extra cost on others.
